2018 - 2019 SCHOLARS-IN-RESIDENCE FELLOWSHIPS

The Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture Scholars-in-Residence Program offers long and short-term research fellowships to scholars and writers pursuing projects in African diasporic studies including history, politics, literature, and culture.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: DECEMBER 1, 2018

Long-term fellowships provide:
 A $35,000 stipend for academics and independent scholars in residence for a continuous period of six to nine months.

Short-term fellowships provide:
 A stipend of $3000 per month to postdoctoral scholars, independent researchers, and creative writers (novelists, playwrights, poets) in residence for a continuous period of one to three months.

Requirements:

- Scholars must conduct extensive, on-site research within the Schomburg's collections
- Fellows must be in full-time residence at the Schomburg during the award period and participate in scheduled seminars and colloquia
- Must not be seeking support for research leading to degrees
- Candidates for advanced degrees must be scheduled to complete and receive their degree before the fellowship start date

This program is made possible in part through grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Ford Foundation, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and the Samuel I. Newhouse Foundation.

How the Other Half Looks

The Lower East Side and the Afterlives of Images

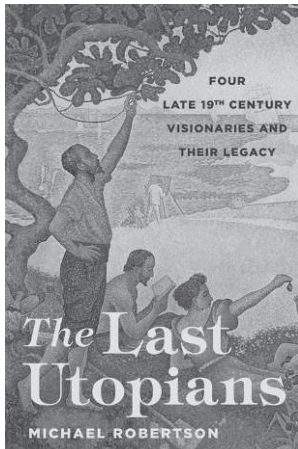

Sara Blair

How New York's Lower East Side inspired new ways of seeing America

"Illuminating at almost every turn, with a telling analytical expressiveness, an utterly persuasive narrative arc, and a tour-de-force impact. No work of art has made it more richly possible to see the usable pasts of the Lower East Side than Blair's book."

—Thomas J. Ferraro, author of Feeling Italian: The Art of Ethnicity in America

Cloth $29.95

The Last Utopians

Four Late Nineteenth-Century Visionaries and Their Legacy

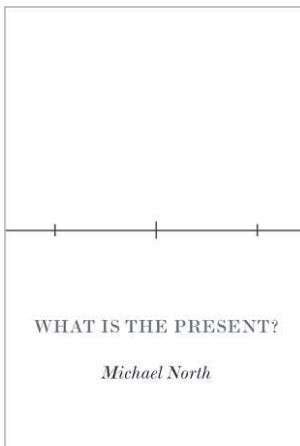

Michael Robertson

The entertaining story of four utopian writers—Edward Bellamy, William Morris, Edward Carpenter, and Charlotte Perkins Gilman—and their continuing influence today

"A brilliant and eloquent guide through the life, times, and imaginations of some of the most compelling writers of the turn of the twentieth century, The Last Utopians is not an epitaph but, rather, a reminder of how vital and humane the utopian imagination once was—and might be again."

—Daniel T. Rodgers, author of Age of Fracture

Cloth $29.95

What Is the Present?

Michael North

A provocative new look at concepts of the present, their connection to ideas about time, and their effect on literature, art, and culture

"A bracing, expansive, and consistently surprising meditation on the notion of the present. In an authoritative yet lucid style, Michael North animates with great panache some of the most profound and persistent questions in the history of ideas."

—David James, author of Modernist Futures: Innovation and Inheritance in the Contemporary Novel

Cloth $29.95

Looking for new ideas for teaching nineteenth-century American literature?

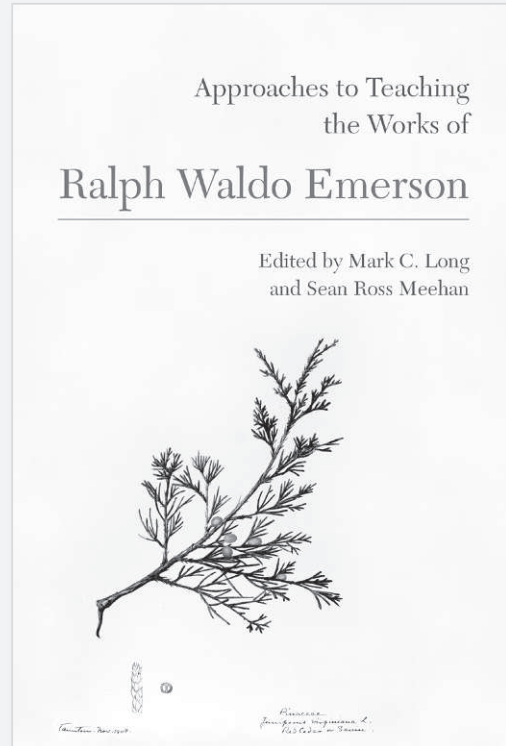

Approaches to Teaching the Works of Ralph Waldo Emerson

Edited by Mark C. Long and Sean Ross Meehan

"The collection addresses diverse settings and pedagogical approaches beyond the traditional ones, and the roster of contributors includes some of the very best Emerson scholars. I learned something new and valuable about Emerson from every essay."

—Robert D. Habich
Ball State University

A leader of the transcendentalist movement and one of the country's first public intellectuals, Ralph Waldo Emerson has been a long-standing presence in American literature courses. Today he is remembered for his essays, but in the nineteenth century he was also known as a poet and orator who engaged with issues such as religion, nature, education, and abolition.

Looking for new ideas for teaching twentieth-century American literature?

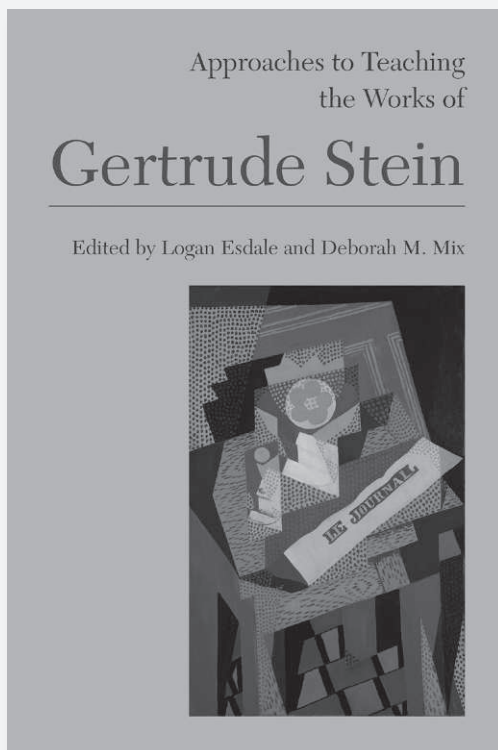

Approaches to Teaching the Works of Gertrude Stein

Edited by Logan Esdale and Deborah M. Mix

“No account of American literature, literary modernism, and women’s literature would be complete without attention to Gertrude Stein. . . . This collection of essays suggests contexts in which we can teach her work.”

—Jane Bowers
John Jay College of Criminal Justice,
City University of New York

A trailblazing modernist, Gertrude Stein studied psychology at Radcliffe with William James and went on to train as a medical doctor before coming out as a lesbian and moving to Paris, where she collected contemporary art and wrote poetry, novels, and libretti. Known as a writer’s writer, she has influenced every generation of American writers since her death in 1946 and remains avant-garde.

Looking for new ideas for teaching nineteenth-century French literature?

Approaches to Teaching Hugo's Les Misérables

Edited by Michal P. Ginsburg and Bradley Stevens

"This collection constitutes a rich educational tool for instructors of French who want to teach and study this great novel."

—Jacques Neefs
Johns Hopkins University

The greatest work of one of France's greatest writers, Victor Hugo's Les Misérables has captivated readers for a century and a half with its memorable characters, its indictment of injustice, its concern for those suffering in misery, and its unapologetic embrace of revolutionary ideals. The novel's length, multiple narratives, and encyclopedic digressiveness make it a pleasure to read but a challenge to teach, and this volume is designed to address the needs of instructors in a variety of courses that include the novel in excerpts or as a whole.
