A-B-Sea Serpent

A curious snake-like creature, whose body consists of alphabet blocks, and whose tongue is a tape measure. With his old friend, the Rattlesnake, the A-B-Sea Serpent once vacationed in Oz. The Royal Book of Oz, p. 30 (T)*

Agnes

Known as Tattypoo's amiable dragon, Agnes turned out not to be a dragon at all, but the victim of one of old Mombi's wicked transformations. She now is one of the most amiable and attractive young ladies in the court of Queen Orin of the Ozure Isles in the Munchkin Country. The Giant Horse of Oz, p. 106. (T)

Akbad

Because Akbad did what he thought was best—even though his deeds could be considered wrong—some people might call him a realist. Once soothsayer in the court of King Cheeoriobed of the Ozure Isles, he is no longer occupying that exalted position. And he has nothing at all to say—*sooth*ing or otherwise. The Giant Horse of Oz, p. 24. (T)

Alberif

On the island of Peakenspire in the Nonestic Ocean, Alberif, Prince of Peaks, and his people, are yodeling islanders. Seafarers, except those who are deaf, usually steer a wide course around Peakenspire. Captain Salt in Oz, p. 183. (T)

Alibabble

Grand Vizier to Jinnicky, the Red Jinn of the Land of Ev, the extraordinary Alibabble is not to be confused with Alibaba of Forty Thieves' fame. (Besides, there are probably more than forty thieves at Jinnicky's court!) The Purple Prince of Oz, p. 153. (T)

Allegro da Capo

Best known as the "musicker," Allegro is a round, fat little man with reeds in his lungs which cause him to make music—of a sort—as he breathes. Since he is obliged to breathe in order to stay alive, he makes music all the time. He lives not far from the Scoodler Country, across the Deadly Desert from Oz. The Road to Oz, p. 94. (B)

Alligator

The fearsome guard of the narrow stone bridge spanning the lake of lava that surrounds Mount Phantastico, home of the dreaded Phanfasms, the alligator once was outwitted by General Guph, when he tried to prevent the wily Nome from visiting the First and Foremost of Phantastico. The Emerald City of Oz, p. 116. Ann Gora

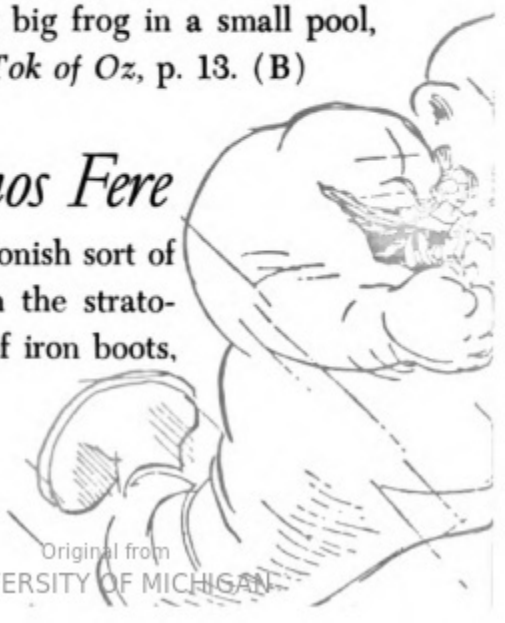
This young unicorn is the favorite lady-in-waiting to Queen Roganda of Unicorners in the Munchkin Country. Ann Gora is very pretty, as unicorns go, but we feel we'd rather go away from Ann Gora, her bad temper, and her sharp horn. Ojo in Oz, p. 238. (T)

Ann Soforth

The young Queen of Oogaboo, a tiny country in a far corner of Oz, still reflects on her ill-fated venture to conquer the world. Queen Ann Soforth once set forth with a ridiculous army of sixteen officers and one private soldier, confident that no one could resist her might. After many adventures and even more hardships, Queen Ann was content to return with her bedraggled army to quiet little Oogaboo, where she reigns peacefully, happy to be a big frog in a small pool, rather than a small frog in a big pool. Tik-Tok of Oz, p. 13. (B)

Atmos Fere



The sky man of Oz is a balloonish sort of person who lives high above the clouds in the stratosphere above Oz. With the help of a pair of iron boots,

Atmos Fere descended to the bottom of the atmosphere. He intended to seize Ozma and take her to his sky kingdom, to prove to the rest of the air people that beings really live at the bottom, as well as the top, of the air. But Ozma had a pin and used it. (These air people think of the bottom of the air, in which we live, as we do about the bottom of the sea.) The Hungry Tiger of Oz, p. 182. (T)

Ato

Ato is the eighth king of the Octagon Isles in the Nonestic Ocean, across the Deadly Desert from Oz. His people once revolted and foolishly followed the Nome King in an attempt to conquer Oz. Later, Ato became a cook on Captain Salt's pirate ship. He liked the life so well that, even though he has now won back his kingdom, he spends six months of the year sailing the Nonestic Ocean and cooking for Captain Salt and his crew. Pirates in Oz, p. 71. (T)

Audah, Aujah, and Aurah

The three Adepts (at sorcery) are beautiful young women who now rule the people once known as Flatheads, in the wild mountainous region of the Gillikin Country. Many years ago, the three Adepts came to the mountain of the Flatheads and decided to remain there and try to help those backward people in the use of their canned brains. All went well until Coo-ee-oh, wicked witch-queen of the neighboring Skeezers, transformed the Adepts into three fish and threw them into the lake which surrounds the magic island of the Skeezers. Excitement and magic came thick and fast before the three Adepts regained their human shapes and resumed their rule of the folk once known as Flatheads. Glinda of Oz, p. 184. (B)

Aunt Em

Princess Dorothy's beloved aunt now lives in the Royal Palace in the Emerald City. Although there is nothing magical about her, Aunt Em is a great favorite of the Oz people. She is loved for her homespun goodness, her sense of humor, and her never-ending wonder and admiration for all the marvelous people and amazing happenings in the Land of Oz. The Wizard of Oz, p. 4. (B)

Aurex

Lady Aurex, queen of the Skeezers, lives in a crystal-domed city on a magic lake-island, in the Gillikin Country. Long ago, Aurex was only one of the serving ladies of the wicked Skeezer queen, Coo-ee-oh. After Lady Aurex aided and befriended Ozma and Dorothy, thus proving she was both wise and good, the Skeezer people lost no time in proclaiming her their queen, in place of the overthrown Coo-ee-oh. Glinda of Oz, p. 104. (B)

Axman

The leader of Gloma's axe-bearing soldiers is a man of sharp wit, as well as of keen blade. He lives in Gloma's shadowy domain, in the Winkie Country. The Wishing Horse of Oz, p. 163. (T)

Azarine

Known as Azarine the Red, once ruler of Red Top Mountain in the Quadling Country, this lovely, red-haired fairy princess now lives in the Emerald City and is the companion of Ozma, Dorothy, Trot, and Betsy Bobbin. You can imagine how wonderfully her red beauty shines amid the green splendor of the Emerald City! Ozoplaning with the Wizard of Oz, p. 204. (T)

Bal

King Bal of the Loons once captured the Tin Woodman, the Scarecrow, and a boy named Woot the Wanderer. Bal was forced to let them go when Woot exploded a number of balloon people with a thorn. King Bal and his Loons live in a forest grove in the Winkie Country. The Tin Woodman of Oz, p. 52. (B)

Balloon Bird

This looney bird tried to pick up a little Philadelphia boy and take him to the explosive Kingdom of Balloons. (This has no relation to the balloon town in the Winkie Country.) But Peter let go of the Balloon Bird's leg and made a safe, though wet, landing in the Nonestic Ocean, just off Ruggedo Isle. Then his adventures really began! The Nome King of Oz, p. 68. (T)

Bamboula

The Imperial Su-jester of Umbrella Island, which may be sailing far over your home at this very moment, Bamboula is a combination jester and advice-giver. Speedy in Oz, p. 21. (T)

Bandmaster

Bandmaster lives in Tune Town in the Winkie Country, and is truly "town leader" He keeps things lively in this noisy town, where the police carry batons instead of night sticks, and the trolley cars hum Strauss waltzes. The Nome King of Oz, p. 199 (T)

Bangladore

It used to be that giants ate people. But, in the case of Bangladore, who lives in the Winkie Country, it is the other way round. Folks try to eat him, for he is made of a most superior grade of taffy. (Perhaps pulling him made him the giant he is!) The Royal Book of Oz, p. 154. (T)

Barber of Rash

The barber once made a hair-breadth escape from the Kingdom of Rash, in the Land of Ev, and found his way to the City of Down Town, below the surface of Ev. He now spends his days giving the money-changers of Down Town close shaves and clippings. The Hungry Tiger of Oz, p. 84. (T)

Barrel Bird

Nothing much is known about this bird, except that he appears to have lost his feathers and modestly flies about in a barrel. It would seem that he had been sky-larking and had flown too high! Lucky Bucky in Oz, p. 19. (N)

Belfaygor of Bourne

The Lord of the Baron Lands of the Quadling Country once had an enchanted beard which grew enormously. (The thought occurs that the barber of Rash could have grown fabulously rich if he had known Belfaygor!) To add to his troubles. Belfaygor was angry with Baron Mogodore—but that's a whole story in itself. Jack Pumpkinhead of Oz, p. 85. (T)

Bell Snickle

This curious creature is a mystery—and he knows it. In fact, Bell Snickle is so proud of being a mystery that he won't tolerate any other mysteries around him. Once, he caused a great commotion in Oz, when he "snickled" around the Wizard's Scalawagons, only succeeding in piling one mystery on another. The Scalawagons of Oz, p. 41. (N)

Benny

A stone statue of a Public Benefactor—a man known for his good deeds—once stood in a public square in Boston. The statue magically came to life and found its way to Oz, where it soon made friends and was nicknamed Benny. Benny may have a heart of stone, but it is of the soft variety—warm and sympathetic. The Giant Horse of Oz, p. 47. (T)

Betsy Bobbin

Betsy is a little girl from Oklahoma, just about the same age as Princess Dorothy. She was shipwrecked and, with her faithful friend Hank the Mule, had many adventures which finally ended happily in the Emerald City. Ozma invited Betsy to make her home in the Royal Palace, so that Dorothy might have a companion her own age. Tik-Tok of Oz, p. 39. (B)

Bhookus

This servant of the Duke of Dork lives on a floating castle-island in the Nonestic Ocean. Since Breakfast, the "bananny" goat, came to Dork, Bhookus has very little to do—and he does it nicely! Pirates in Oz, p. 188. (T)

Big Lavender Bear

The King of Bear Center in the Winkie Country is a handsome toy bear. Like all his subjects, the Big Lavender Bear is stuffed with a fine grade of hair. He also possesses a mite of magic, by means of which he aided Cayke the Cookie Cook in finding her lost magic dishpan. Too, he helped Dorothy and her searching party in their hunt to find the lost Ozma. The Lost Princess of Oz, p. 204. (B)

Bini Aru

A Hyup who lives on Mount Munch in the Munchkin Country, Bini was once a clever sorcerer. When Ozma proclaimed that the practice of magic in Oz was forbidden to all except Glinda the Good and the Wizard, Bini stopped practicing his magical arts at once and destroyed many of his wizard's tools. He kept only one charm, a magic word ("Pyrzqxgl") which he had invented. Bini wrote down this magic word and how to pronounce it and hid the paper under the floor of his home. (Although the magic word has long since been discovered, no one in the United States or any part of the great outside world has managed to pronounce it correctly.) The Magic of Oz, p. 18. (B)

Binx

Binx is one of the pirates who plotted with the Nome King to conquer Oz. But soon they had the wind taken out of their sails. Pirates in Oz, p. 61. (T)

Bittsywittle

In Stratovania, high in the stratosphere over Oz, Bittsywittle serves airy dishes and light refreshments to the high-and-mighty royalty of this rarified realm. Ozoplaning with the Wizard of Oz, p. 103. (T)

Blinkem

The personal attendant to the King of Bunnybury, whose kingdom is a civilized city of rabbits in the Quadling Country, Blinkem, like his whole city, is under the personal protection of Glinda, who is very fond of bunnies. The Emerald City of Oz, p. 205. (B)

Blinkie

This old woman was once leader of an evil band of witches who terrorized the good people of Jinxland, in a remote corner of Oz. The two most evil deeds that Blinkie ever performed were to freeze the heart of a lovely princess so that she could no longer love, and to transform Cap'n Bill into a grasshopper with a wooden leg. The Scarecrow, with the aid of the Ork, soon put matters aright. Blinkie was punished by losing all of her magical powers and being sent back to her hovel to live as a harmless old lady. The Scarecrow of Oz, p. 153. (B)

Bloff

This fellow is one of the nine fishermen who live on barren Nonagon Island in the Nonestic Ocean. Bloff is still convinced that the visit of the Red Jinn to his cottage was a nightmare, and he still can't explain the disappearance of his poor cat Nina. The Silver Princess in Oz, p. 208. (T)

to the Emerald City. However, Blug made the mistake of telling Roquat that his armies were not powerful enough to conquer the Emerald City. The wicked Nome King threw his sceptre at Blug and later banished him. Eventually, the Nome King used poor Blug's idea. The Emerald City of Oz, p. 17. (B)

Bobo

The Prince of Boboland. See BILBIL, the goat.

Bob Up

This little orphan boy's name once was Bobby Downs. With the clown, Notta-Bit-More, he found his way to Oz from America. Ozma, Dorothy, Button Bright, and all the Oz folks quickly took the homeless little red-headed boy to their hearts, and you can be sure he is living very happily in Oz today, with his faithful clown friend. The Cowardly Lion of Oz, p. 37. (T)

Boglodore

Boglodore was a wizard in Ozamaland and was also known as the Old Man of the Jungle. He carried Prince Tandy off to Patripanny Island in the Nonestic Ocean and left him to the mercies of the wild beasts and Leopard Men. When his own treachery betrayed him, Boglodore turned against his co-plotter in a way that helped Prince Tandy out of his difficulties. Captain Salt in Oz, p. 260. (T)

Boldoso

At one time, Boldoso was a henchman of Realbad the bandit. Now he is a peaceful Winkie farmer, prouder of his golden corn than he was of his golden coins in former days. Ojo in Oz, p. 52 (T)

Bookman

This curious little man lives in the Winkie Country. His body is a book, but it never contains the information anyone wants, unfortunately. (We have tried to make WHO'S WHO IN OZ very different from Bookman!) The Nome King of Oz, p. 220. (T)

Book of Royalty

The King of Bookville, in the Winkie Country, is a proud, stupid, and unpleasant monarch. His hard-tooled cover conceals much lore respecting the superiority of royalty over common folk. We would like to tell the King of Bookville that he is out of date—in fact, he is out of print! The Hidden Valley of Oz, p. 152. (C)

Boq

Boq is the Munchkin man who so kindly entertained Dorothy, sheltering her in his home on the little girl's first night in Oz, during her first visit to Emerald City. The Wizard of Oz, p. 21. (B)

Bragga

Captain of the Guard of Baffleburg, Bragga is like some other minor officials: what he lacks in ability, he makes up in *bragga*docio. Jack Pumpkinhead of Oz, p. 140. (T)

Braided Man

This curious personage is a very old man who lives half way up the spiral staircase, in the Pyramid Mountain of the Valley of Voe, a little-known underground country across the Deadly Desert from Oz. The Braided Man's white hair and beard are so long they fall to his feet. He has very carefully braided both hair and beard, tying them with brightly colored ribbons. He manufactures flutters for American flags and rustles for ladies' silk dresses. Dorothy and the Wizard in Oz, p. 113. (B)

Breakfast

Breakfast is a "bananny" goat, the only one of her kind. Her horns are golden-ripe bananas, which keep falling off wherever she goes. So, Breakfast leaves a trail of bananas—which would make her a very welcome visitor to a fruit store. In case you like milk with your breakfast bananas, Breakfast can supply that, too. Pirates of Oz, p. 170. (T)

Bubbles

These "bubbles" are to be found on the Up-hill-down-hill River in the Nome Kingdom, across the Deadly Desert from Oz. When one pops and vanishes, it speaks a single word. The only disadvantage in conversing with the bubbles is that a lengthy conversation is likely to find you answering yourself. Lucky Bucky in Oz, p. 73. (N)

Bud

King Bud is the ruler of Noland, a beautiful fairyland that lies across the desert from Oz. Bud is a frank and merry boy, dearly beloved by all his subjects. Once he was a simple country lad, but a series of amazing adventures made him King of Noland. The Road to Oz, p. 236. (B)

Bullfinch

This small bird's bright little eyes don't miss much. It was Bullfinch who gave Button Bright the clue that solved the mystery of lost Ozma's whereabouts. The Lost Princess of Oz, p. 156. (B)

Bumpy Man

In the magical Land of Mo, there is a mountain which has an ear, and this ear is actually the Bumpy Man. He lives at the top of the mountain, where it snows popcorn
