Iraq has a government worthy of its people—a government prepared to live in peace with its people and its neighbors.

Since October 2001, we have been making short-term extensions to our cooperative agreement with the Iraqi National Congress (INC), as we negotiate a new agreement with them. The funding in the current grant has allowed the INC to continue operations at its headquarters and satellite offices, begin satellite television broadcasting into Iraq, continue production and distribution of its newspaper, undertake outreach programs to further develop its organization, deploy teams to advocate the interests of the Iraqi people at international fora, plan for the delivery of humanitarian relief of Iraqis in need, collect information on the Iraqi regime, and manage assistance provided under the Iraq Liberation Act (ILA). We plan to reach a new agreement with the INC shortly, to provide them with further funding to continue such activities.

In addition, we are currently planning a broad-based conference of Iraqi emigres and oppositionists that will (1) provide Iraqis the opportunity to make their case for a better government; (2) affirm a statement of political principles and give a basis for major oppositionists to come together to build towards the future; and (3) provide a platform for a series of working groups regarding immediate, practical post-Saddam needs, such as transitional justice, public health, public finance, education, environment and water, the role of the military, building a free press, building civil society, and rebuilding the Iraqi economy.

THE UNITED NATIONS COMPENSATION COMMISSION

The United States Compensation Commission (UNCC) was established and operates pursuant to UNSCRs 687 (1991) and 692 (1991). It continues to process claims and pay compensation for losses and damages suffered by individuals, corporations, governments and international organizations, as a direct result of Iraq's unlawful invasion and occupation of Kuwait. To date, the UNCC has issued approximately 2.6 million awards worth about $37.7 billion, and has already paid $13.8 billion of those awards. Of the former amount, the United States Government has been awarded approximately $666.3 million from the UNCC for payment to U.S. claimants. Awards and the costs of the UNCC's operation are paid from the Compensation Fund, which is funded through the allocation to it of a certain percentage of the proceeds from authorized oil sales under Security Council resolution 986 (1995) and subsequent extensions. The allotment has generally been set at 30 percent. However, for the six-month phase of the OFF program beginning December 6, 2000, there was a reduction in that allotment to 25 percent. This reduction has been extended with each subsequent rollover, including the latest one starting on November 29, 2001, as embodied in UNSCR 1382. The reduction is designed to make funds available for specific programs intended to meet pressing humanitarian needs of the Iraqi people.

CONCLUSION

Iraq remains a serious threat to international peace and security. The Iraqi regime's record on human rights continues to be abysmal. The United States remains determined to see Iraq comply fully with all of its obligations under UNSC resolutions while at the same time endeavoring to see that the humanitarian needs of the Iraqi population are addressed. The United States will continue to encourage and support those Iraqis working for the day when Iraq rejoins the family of nations as a responsible and law-abiding member under a new government that serves its people, rather than represses them.
