

Gale Presents Two New Series for Critical Appraisals of Short Stories and Medieval and Classical Literature

Devoted solely to the authors of short fiction

Short Story Criticism

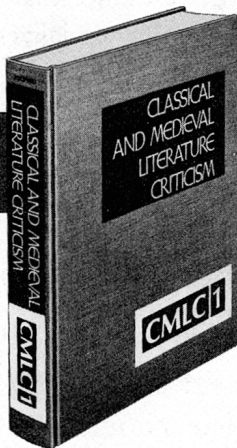

Now when you need to locate critical information on short fiction, you can find it in one convenient source: Gale's new Short Story Criticism series. Covering short story writers from around the world, from all time periods, each annual volume will provide critical evaluations of about 15-20 authors.

Entries begin with a critical introduction that discusses the importance of short fiction to the author's career, followed by a list of the author's major short story collections. The main part of the entry consists of chronologically arranged critical excerpts (less than 20% drawn from other Gale criticism series) representing the full range of critical response the short stories have received.

Authors covered in Volume 1 include:

- Sherwood Anderson
- J.G. Ballard
- John Cheever
- G.K. Chesterton
- Fedor Dostoevski
- William Faulkner
- Mary Wilkins Freeman
- Ernest Hemingway
- Guy de Maupassant
- Herman Melville
- Flannery O'Connor
- Edgar Allan Poe
- J.D. Salinger
- James Thurber
- Jean Toomer
- Eudora Welty

Edited by Laurie Lanzen Harris and Sheila Fitzgerald. 450 pages.
$70.00/vol. (Volume 1 ready November 1987)

Appraisals of early literature from antiquity through 1400 Classical and Medieval Literature Criticism

This new series provides librarians, students, and researchers with an accessible source of carefully selected critical material on writers who lived from antiquity through the fourteenth century.

Each volume presents definitive overviews of four to six authors or works. Entries begin with an author or title heading that lists the author's full name, variant forms, and pseudonyms, with birth and death dates of the author, when known. This is followed by a biographical/historical introduction to the author or work written by Gale editors. The main part of the entry consists of critical excerpts, carefully selected to be representative of critical views from all periods of history, with emphasis on modern evaluations made during the past 100 years.

Entries also contain explanatory notes that provide background information on important critics, a list of the author's principal works, illustrations, author portraits when available, and a bibliography of additional sources for further study.

Author/works included in Volume 1 are:

- Apuleius
- Chanson de Roland
- Lady Murasaki (The Tale of the Genii)
- Beowulf
- Homer (The Illiad)
- Slovo o Polku Igoreve (The Song of Igor's Campaign)

Edited by Dennis Poupard and Jelena Kronick. 450 pages. $80.00. (Ready December 1987)

THE RIGHT TO Literacy

*A Conference
Sponsored by the Modern Language Association,
Ohio State University, and the Federation of State Humanities Councils*

16-18 SEPTEMBER 1988
COLUMBUS, OHIO

The Modern Language Association encourages members of the teaching profession at all levels, as well as others interested in the literacy movement, to propose individual papers or entire sessions devoted to one of the following areas of concern and based not simply on research but on firsthand experience within or outside the classroom.

The Uses of Literacy: explorations of the relations between literacy and thinking, literacy and citizenship, and literacy and culture.

Literacy and Its Enemies/Illiteracy and Its Friends: explorations of the ways that social forces and institutions affect literacy and illiteracy, with particular attention to the resistance that obstructs, or the "support" that trivializes, the pursuit of full literacy.

Becoming Literate Today: explorations of how children and adults learn to read and write in their native tongues or in second languages.

Struggles for Literacy Today: explorations of attempts to achieve literacy in different historical periods and different cultures.

The conference aims to attract individuals who are involved in literacy education and interested in the substantive, political, and theoretical issues of literacy, broadly defined as the ability to use language in order to become an active participant in all forms of public discourse.

The deadline for submitting proposals is 15 January 1988. Anyone interested should request a proposal form from Robert D. Denham, MLA, 10 Astor Pl., New York, NY 10003-6981.

MODERNIST POETICS OF HISTORY
 POUND, ELIOT, AND THE SENSE OF THE PAST
 JAMES LONGENBACH

While it has long been recognized that the poetry of T. S. Eliot and Ezra Pound grew from an active interest in the past, an exploration of the nature of their "historical sense" has not until now been undertaken. By thoroughly examining these poets' collected and uncollected writings, James Longenbach presents their understandings of the philosophical idea of history and analyzes the strategies of historical interpretation they discussed in their critical prose and embodied in their "poems including history." Although concentrating on Pound's work through 1917 and Eliot's through 1922, the book moves beyond this focus to a more comprehensive analysis of the modernist sense of the past, locating its origins in a strain of Romantic literature exemplified by Pater and Yeats.

"This is an exemplary work. Longenbach, without discarding our existing knowledge of the Pound/Eliot origins of twentieth-century High Modernism, has spelled out a context that was always vaguely implicit but never easy to specify: a new and anti-positivistic idea of how 'history' can be understood.... The scholarship is of a high order throughout, and the narrative everywhere perspicuous."

—Hugh Kenner, The Johns Hopkins University

THE LINGUISTIC MOMENT
 FROM WORDSWORTH TO STEVENS
 J. HILLIS MILLER

This series of readings, available for the first time in paperback, explores the functioning of moments in poems when the medium—language—becomes an issue. In works by Wordsworth, Shelley, Arnold, Browning, Hopkins, Hardy, Yeats, Stevens, and Williams, the book discusses moments when language is not simply used, but talked about as a theme. In each case the linguistic moment takes a distinctive form, but in all instances it has such momentum that it tends to dominate the poem and to suspend its ostensible meaning. Significantly revising aspects of his earlier work, J. Hillis Miller examines the breakdown, in the linguistic moment, of the illusion that language is a transparent medium of meaning.

"With this new, long-awaited study, in which he turns his attention to the poets, he [Miller] has fully consolidated his position in the vanguard of American theoretical criticism.... it is a measure of his interpretive ingenuity that although the general tenor of his readings is the same throughout, the precise contours are always exhilaratingly new."

WINNER OF THE 1979 JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL AWARD OF THE MODERN LANGUAGE ASSOCIATION AND THE 1979 MELVILLE CANE AWARD OF THE POETRY SOCIETY OF AMERICA

ROOTS OF LYRIC
 PRIMITIVE POETRY AND MODERN POETICS
 ANDREW WELSH

Folk riddles, emblems, charms, and chants are a few of the traditional forms examined by Andrew Welsh to discover the means by which poetic language achieves its powerful effects. His book shows how the roots of lyric are embodied in primitive verse forms, how they are raised to higher powers in poetry from the Renaissance to the twentieth century, and how an awareness of them can illuminate our reading of the poetry of any age.

"...a useful and illuminating exploration of the central organizing powers in poetic language. It should interest anyone concerned with the intersection of oral and written poetry, in the shared lyric spaces of primitive poetry and modern poetics."

Poetry in English An Anthology

M.L. ROSENTHAL,
New York University,
General Editor

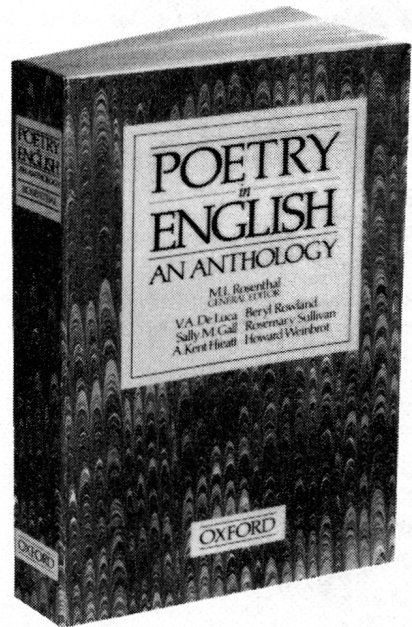

Series Editors:
V.A. De Luca, Sally M. Gall, A. Kent
Hieatt, Beryl Rowland, Rosemary
Sullivan, Howard Weinbrot

This authoritative, handsomely designed anthology of poetry from the Anglo-Saxon to the contemporary stresses major figures without neglecting minor ones of quality. Meant for survey and genre courses (and for all interested readers), it offers responsible scholarly texts for study in themselves and for seeing both the continuities and the changes in dominant modes over the centuries. The larger aim is to enhance appreciation of poetic art generally.

Selection is based on excellence, along with certain necessary considerations: how well poems reflect their periods, show the development of a form or genre, illustrate a poet's range, and speak to modern sensibilities. Whenever feasible, complete poems are used.

In addition to headnotes, annotations, and known dates of composition and publication, Poetry in English includes M.L. Rosenthal's introduction, Sally M. Gall's comprehensive essay on versification, and an author/title/first-line index. It is the ideal text for students and teachers alike.

The Technical Writing Process

MARILYN SCHAUER SAMUELS,
Case Western Reserve University

Drawing on current research in cognitive science, real industry samples and cases, and the author's fifteen years of teaching experience in academia and business, this book follows the process of technical writing from reader-oriented problem-solving through document design to final editing. It outlines the communications requirements specific to the corporate setting and applies them to job-related memos, instructions, proposals, feasibility studies, progress reports, oral presentations, and much more. Considering visual aids and matters of style throughout, The Technical Writing Process provides a stimulating balance of theory and practice to guide writers towards effective technical communication.

Popular Writing In America The Interaction of Style and Audience

Fourth Edition

DONALD McQUADE, University of California, Berkeley, and ROBERT ATWAN

Praise for earlier editions: "An impressive and ambitious work.... This anthology manages to assemble a vast amount of material and to present it in a unified and workable manner." —College Composition and Communication. In response to comments from professors and colleagues, McQuade and Atwan have revised the fourth edition of this popular anthology to include more expository writing, while retaining the successful mixture of excerpts from a broad spectrum of sources.

A Rhetoric for Writing Teachers

Second Edition

ERIKA LINDEMANN, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Praise for the first edition: "Deserves the attention of all department heads concerned about the way their faculty teach composition. Every new teacher... should read this book before starting to teach any composition course at the freshman level or above, and experienced faculty members will find the book full of good suggestions for reinvigorating their teaching." —ADE Bulletin (Association of Departments of English). Concise yet comprehensive, this practical handbook summarizes important research in the teaching of composition and shows how to apply it in the classroom. This new edition has been substantially revised, bringing the material as well as the bibliography up to date with current scholarship.

The Practical Tutor

EMILY MEYER and LOUISE Z. SMITH, both of the University of Massachusetts, Boston

An invaluable resource for teachers, teaching assistants, peer tutors, and parents, The Practical Tutor provides a comprehensive guide to improving composition. It explores typical writing problems and their causes, summarizes recent research and thinking in the field of composition, and suggests strategies for helping writers overcome their difficulties. Illustrated with representative compositions and sample dialogues between tutors and writers, the book suggests, in the most precise terms, how to formulate questions that will spur writers to make their own corrections and to write critically and independently.

Cross-Examinations of Law and Literature

Cooper, Hawthorne, Stowe, and Melville

Brook Thomas

Thomas uses a legal lens to read several important fictions—The Pioneers, The House of the Seven Gables, Uncle Tom's Cabin, and a number of Melville's works. He presents these as reflections of and influences on crucial legal issues of antebellum America. $29.95 cloth

Robert Lowell: Essays on the Poetry

Steven Axelrod and Helen Deese, Editors

The twelve essays in this volume, written by many of the most distinguished scholars in the field, offer a chronological review of Lowell's career as a poet. $29.95 cloth

Emily Dickinson

The Poet on the Second Story

Jerome Loving

In this original study Professor Loving demonstrates that any serious examination of Emily Dickinson's work must be bound up with the details of the poet's life. $19.95 cloth

American Realism and American Drama: 1800–1940

Brenda Murphy

While literary criticism of American drama has previously focused on the influence of continental and English realistic drama on American playwrights, Murphy argues that the theory and practice of native realists such as William Dean Howells and Henry James are equally important. $27.95 cloth

Visions of the Modern City

Essays in History, Art, and Literature

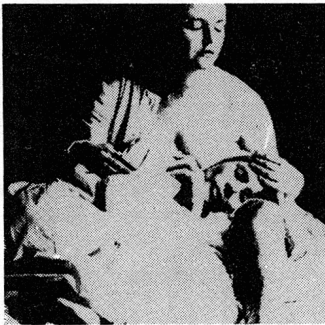

edited by William Sharpe and Leonard Wallock

"We are now at a point of transition to a new kind of city," write William Sharpe and Leonard Wallock, "and thus we are reexperiencing the same crisis of language felt by observers of early-nineteenth and early-twentieth century cities." Visions of the Modern City explores the ways in which artists and writers—from Dickens and Baudelaire to Bellow and Pynchon—have struggled to define the city during the past two centuries and have opened a new perspective on the urban vision of our time.

Essays examine the representation of cities from the London and Paris of 1850 to the New York, Los Angeles, and Tokyo of the present and offer a view of the newly emerging "decentered" city. Contributors include Thomas Bender and William Taylor, Eric Lampard, Steven Marcus, and Deborah Nord.

Images in Our Souls

Cavell, Psychoanalysis, and Cinema

edited by Joseph H. Smith and William Kerrigan

In his work on "the Hollywood comedy of remarriage," Stanley Cavell has speculated on the existence of another, adjacent genre that holds no place for the conversation that makes comic remarriage possible. In Images in Our Souls, Cavell defines this genre—"the melodrama of the unknown woman"—in which men and women speak different languages, and where men confront the "unknownness" of the other.

The contributors to Images in Our Souls explore recurring issues of male skepticism, activity and passivity, and gender differences in cinema. Subjects include Hitchcock's Vertigo and Shadow of a Doubt, Babenco's Kiss of the Spiderwoman, Ophuls's Letter from an Unknown Woman, Chaplin's The Kid, Bergman's Cries and Whispers, and the films of Peter Weir.

SAMUEL BECKETT'S NEW WORLDS

Style in Metafiction

By Susan D. Brienza

This is the first book to focus on Beckett's style in fiction and to employ primarily stylistics to aid literary criticism of these self-referential texts. It is also the first full-length study of Beckett's short fictions of the past thirty-five years, his work in narrative since The Unnamable. 308 pp., 4 illus. $24.95

THE PHYSICIAN'S TALE

Edited by Helen Storm Corsa

Volume 2, Part 17 of a Variorum Edition of the Works of Geoffrey Chaucer

The Physician's Tale, somewhat neglected during the nineteenth century, has enjoyed a resurgence of scholarly attention over the past quarter century. Corsa demonstrates above all else that this tale will continue to make tantalizing claims on our interest and attention, and her unusually full treatment should prove to be an indispensable aid to student and teacher alike. 208 pp., illus. $29.50

THE VIRGIN TEXT

Fiction, Sexuality, and Ideology

By Jon Stratton

Uniting post-structuralist sociological and historical theories of the family and sexuality with feminist literary criticism of the novel, Stratton explores how the written and published text has been historically constructed and conceptualized as a "fetishized" female object. The first volume in The Oklahoma Project for Discourse and Theory. 256 pp. $22.50

Max Apple: Things don't behave the way that so-called realistic fiction depicts them. . . . In my freshman English class I taught One Hundred Years of Solitude; I think it's a wonderful book. Many freshmen did not understand it – they thought it was weird and claimed that nothing like that could ever happen. One student finally got up and said that he much preferred The Red and the Black. . . . So I said, Look, if you take a course in the history of World War I, you're used to reading paragraphs that give you the four reasons for the war. . . . We're used to all these kinds of political and economic ways of talking about what's happened. But, I said, Marquez is telling you about these things in another way. Suppose you start a story like this: Once upon a time there was a vegetarian with one testicle who decided he wanted to kill all the Jews in the world, and one of the most sophisticated nations in the history of the world went along with him. I said, Look what history is! Look at what you're living in the midst of!

"McCaffery and Gregory have the best interviewing style I've come across, and they manage, as in their illuminating conversation with Max Apple, to get more out of their subjects than anyone else who is conducting such interviews." – Alan Wilde, author of Horizons of Assent. Illustrated, $22.50

Boundaries of the Self

Gender, Culture, Fiction
Roberta Rubenstein

Rubenstein analyzes the complete fictional canons of six contemporary women writers who represent a multiplicity of female viewpoints and cultural identities: Maxine Hong Kingston, Toni Morrison, Leslie Silko, Marilynne Robinson, Margaret Atwood, and Penelope Mortimer. Through their fiction, all six explore such issues as union and exclusion, attachment and separation, the discovery of psychological boundaries, the nature of relationships between mothers (or mother figures) and daughters, the implicit or explicit cultural conflicts between dissimilar groups or values, and the relationship between gender and ethnicity. $24.95

Robert Hayden

A Critical Analysis of His Poetry
Pontheolla Taylor Williams
With a foreword by Blyden Jackson

Robert Hayden selected themes and forms from both Euro-American and Afro-American literary traditions. In her critical study of Hayden's complete oeuvre, including the posthumously published American Journal and uncollected poetry, Williams demonstrates how he was determined to correct the distortions of Afro-American history by choosing well-known black heroic figures to represent aspects of Afro-American culture. Her study is based on extensive research in the poet's private papers and on a series of interviews with Hayden, his colleagues, and his publishers. $21.95

The Romance Revolution

Erotic Novels for Women and the Quest for a New Sexual Identity
Carol Thurston

A sociological study of romance novels and the women who read them, The Romance Revolution offers a comprehensive analysis of the evolution of the genre since 1972. "One of the most readable and consistently fascinating books I have read in a long time. Thurston offers a view of romances that will surprise many readers who have written off these books as a form of escapist literature." – Maurice Charney, author of Sexual Fiction. Illustrated. Cloth, $27.95; paper, $9.95

Intricate and Simple Things

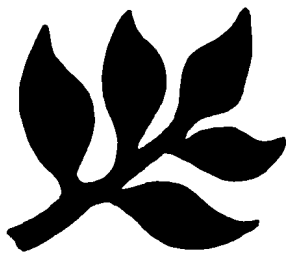

The Poetry of Galway Kinnell
Lee Zimmerman

Charting the shifting relationships between isolation and belonging in Galway Kinnell's poetry, Zimmerman identifies poetic affinities between Kinnell and three opposed pairs of literary ancestors: William Wordsworth and John Keats, Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson, and T. S. Eliot and William Carlos Williams. Connecting Kinnell to Rilke and to other twentieth-century writers, Zimmerman also examines Kinnell's novel, translations, and critical writing. $19.95

SHAKESPEARE

A Study and Research Guide
Second Edition, Revised

David M. Bergeron and Geraldo U. de Sousa

This volume provides for the student or general reader an overview of the development and present state of Shakespeare scholarship and the variety of possible critical approaches—including sections on feminism and gender studies, Shakespeare's Romances, poststructuralism, and the new historicism—and summaries and evaluations of scores of bibliographies, periodicals, monographs, and reference books. Also included are guidelines for, and a model of, the critical research paper, taking into account the new MLA documentation system.

"Answers a lot of questions [students] ask, as well as others they ought to ask. . . . Useful not only to undergraduates, but also to graduate students, teachers, and others who are beginning serious study of Shakespeare."—Shakespeare Quarterly.

AN ACADEMIC QUESTION

By Barbara Pym. Set in a provincial English university in the early 1970's, An Academic Question is, according to Vanity Fair, "a must for Pym completists... a picnic outing of a book." Kirkus Reviews called it "bracing fun... intriguing Pym, studded with luminescent thumbnail characterizations and deliciously funny."

FAGGOTS

By Larry Kramer. "Faggots sends up New York's self-imposed gay ghetto... its gyms, its discos, orgy rooms, army fatigues, moustaches and advertising agencies," wrote Library Journal of this controversial novel when it was first published in 1978. A decade later, Erica Jong called it "a book of major historical importance—the first contemporary novel to chronicle gay life with unsparing honesty and wild humor."

THE NIGHTINGALE

By Sholom Aleichem. Translated by Aliza Shevrin. Exploring the relationship between the demands of religion and the temptations of the secular world, Aleichem tells the tragic story of a young cantor whose clear, lilting voice earns him the nickname of Nightingale. "Shevrin's translation is a delight... a book where tears and laughter mingle." — New York Times Book Review

SOMETIMES I LIVE IN THE COUNTRY

By Frederick Busch. A novel with "great resources of humor and—who even uses the word any more?—tenderness," said The New York Times Book Review of this novel of adolescent anguish and emotional renewal from "an immensely gifted and mindful writer." "A powerful account of coming of age in an isolated and forbidding pocket of contemporary rural America." — Washington Post Book World

ANNA DELANEY'S CHILD

By John Thorndike. Set in America's heartland, this beautifully crafted first novel follows one woman's journey from the devastating loss of her only son and recent divorce to her first tentative steps toward healing and building new bonds. "Thorndike creates a strong heroine in Anna Delaney.... The setting is carefully detailed... and the characters, each mourning a loss, are strikingly original." — Library Journal

Signet Classic

SHAKESPEARE

The most comprehensive, authoritative and complete paperback collection of Shakespeare's dramas... newly revised to include the latest in critical insight and interpretation.

MORE THAN 18 MILLION IN PRINT

Great literature and great scholarship have always complemented each other in the SIGNET CLASSIC SHAKESPEARE. Now Sylvan Barnet, Professor of English at Tufts University and the original general editor of the series, has carefully selected special new critical materials designed to enhance the appreciation of these plays by a new generation of readers.

SIGNET CLASSIC SHAKESPEARE is the only paperback series

- To grow with the times by selecting both historical and thoroughly contemporary critical commentary on such issues as feminist, political, and theatrical interpretations of the plays and including recent essays by such respected scholars as Frank Kermode, Carolyn Heilbrun, Michael Goldman, Linda Bamber, and many others.
- To provide more bibliographic listings and the most up-to-date and relevant listings of pertinent books and articles.
- To feature timely new essays, written by Sylvan Barnet, on the Performance or Stage History of each play.

Complete, contemporary, consistently superior, the SIGNET CLASSIC SHAKESPEARE also remains one of the most affordable editions available.

SIGNET CLASSIC SHAKESPEARE combines the newest in critical material with the proven superiority of such outstanding features as

Footnotes—extensive but unobtrusive notes at the bottom of each page
 Type Size—larger than the competing editions with better leading between lines and better spacing between speeches

Introductory Remarks—cogent descriptions of Shakespeare's background, the texts of his plays and notes on the text, and comments on Shakespeare's theater
 General Introduction—each play features an extensive individual introduction by a noted scholar

Character Names—provided in full for each speech throughout the play
 Original Play Source—a specific account of sources; original materials are actually included when applicable

"The new revisions of contents promise to make this series a most desirable choice for teaching Shakespeare in the 1980's and '90's."

—Irwin Primer, Professor of English and Coordinator of Sophomore Literature, Rutgers University, Newark Campus.

Actes du XVIII^e Congrès International de Linguistique et de Philologie Romanes

Université de Trier (Trèves) 1986
Edited by DIETER KREMER

[= Proceedings of the 18th International Conference on Romance Languages and Literatures. University of Trier (West Germany), 1986.]

7 vols. with tog. c. 4540 p. Cloth tog. c. US-$ 730.—. ISBN 3-484-50220-7
The volumes will also be sold separately. A special prospectus with detailed information on the contents is available.

The documents of this most important international academic conference of Romance scholars, which took place in Germany for the first time, offer a representative cross-section of recent work in all Romance languages and literatures. 371 reports are collected here including 19 podium discussions, divided into 16 sections led by the most important specialists in the field. Besides such traditional areas as the history of language, the geography of language, lexicography, theoretical linguistics, medieval literature, topics such as »Romania submersa«/»Romania nova« (Africa), onomastics, new methods of literary analysis, academic history or the presentation of important research projects on international Romance studies are given prominence.

Anne Betten Grundzüge der Prosasyntax

Stilprägende Entwicklungen
vom Althochdeutschen zum Neuhochdeutschen

[= Prose Syntax. Style moulding developments from Old High German to New High German.]

C. 190 p. Paper c. US-$ 24.—. ISBN 3-484-31082-0
(Reihe Germanistische Linguistik. Vol. 82)

The first part provides important sources for prose from the 8th to the 16th century as well as the reasons for its proliferation. The second part begins with a summary of the treatment of syntax in historical grammars followed by a rough draft of the development of sentence constructions from OHG to NHG. The oversimplification demanded by such approaches is enhanced by more detailed, critical, text-based analyses in the following four chapters: conjunction, periphrastic verb forms, verb position, and sentence complexity.

The DANLEX-Group Descriptive Tools for Electronic Processing of Dictionary Data

Studies in computational lexicography

XI, 261 p. Paper c. US-$ 58.—. ISBN 3-484-30920-2
(Lexicographica. Series Maior. Vol. 20)

This book grew out of a wish on the part of the authors to use the power of the computer for lexicographical cooperation: cooperation between lexicographers and publishers, between the editors of individual dictionaries, between authors and users of dictionaries, and between different dictionaries. The DANLEX group itself is an example of cooperation between dictionary editors, experts in computational linguistics, terminologists and publishers.

Georges Kleiber Relatives restrictives et relatives appositives: une opposition »introuvable«?

[= Restrictive Relatives and Appositive Relatives: An »Unperceptive« Opposition?]

[II], 166 p. Cloth c. US-$ 39.—. ISBN 3-484-52216-x
(Beihfte zur Zeitschrift für romanische Philologie. Vol. 216)

In the first chapter the author examines the various semantic definitions, the tests of identification and the different syntactic representations which are proposed. He shows then (2nd chapter) the limits of such characterisations. After a review of the different studies which have tried to go beyond the traditional opposition (chapter 3), he offers a new conception of the distinction restrictive/appositive based on a structural and pronominal ambivalence.

Lexikon der Romanistischen Linguistik (LRL)

GÜNTER HOLTUS, MICHAEL METZELTIN, CHRISTIAN SCHMITT

[= Dictionary of Romance Linguistics.]

8 vols. with tog. c. 5,840 p. Cloth. Format 17 x 24 cm.
Complete c. US-$ 2,030.—. ISBN I–VIII: 3-484-50250-9
The volumes will also be sold separately. A prospectus with detailed information is available.

The »Lexikon der Romanistischen Linguistik (LRL)« provides a general survey of Romance language studies, emphasizing both the links between this area of research and language studies in general and the pioneering aspects of Romance studies that have been taken up to a significant degree in other areas of linguistics. — The work consists of 8 volumes and totals some 5,840 pages. Each volume will be available separately. The articles are written in French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, or German. Publication will begin in late 1987 with volume IV (articles 234–292) on Italian, Corsican, and Sardinian. The next installments to appear will be volume III (Romanian, Dalmatian and Istro-Romanic, Friulian, Ladin, Romansch), and volume V (French, Occitan, Catalan).

The first volume to appear:

Vol. IV Italian, Corsican, Sardinian

Aleksander Szulc Historische Phonologie des Deutschen

[= Historical German Phonology.]

C. 175 p. Paper c. US-$ 24.—. ISBN 3-484-65006-0
(Sprachstrukturen. Series A. Historische Sprachstrukturen. Vol. 6)

This book is intended to fill the historically determined gap in German linguistics between the neogrammarian concept of historical language studies and generative phonology. It gives a survey of the development of the German sound system from its Indo-European roots up to the standard language of today.

[= Frisch and Dürrenmatt. Material and commentaries.]

C. 190 p. Paper c. US-$ 24.-. ISBN 3-484-32042-7
(Untersuchungen zur deutschen Literaturgeschichte. Vol. 42)

This book is a collection of new insights on Frisch and Dürrenmatt: The articles deal with the growing tension between Frisch and the »Neue Zürcher Zeitung«, his strong sense of literary tradition, different grotesque reactions to performances of Dürrenmatt's »Visit«, Tilly Wedekinds accusation that the »Marriage of Mr. Mississippi« was a plagiarism, a complex of security motifs in the »Meteor«.

Sigmund von Birken Werke und Korrespondenz

Edited by KLAUS GARBER, FERDINAND VAN INGEN, DIETRICH JÖNS and HARTMUT LAUFHÜTTE

[= Sigmund von Birken, Works and Correspondence (Critical Edition).]

Since the 1960's research in German Literature of the 17th century has taken new directions and thereby uncovered the absence of an edition of the works of one of the most important German authors of this time. Until now there have been only a few reprintings or new printings of the work of Sigmund von Birken, even though the greater part of this writings are by far more typical for the way of thinking and writing of the Baroque than others which have determined the picture of German Baroque literature for centuries. This critical edition contains Birken's works in certain areas in a representative selections, in others in a complete edition and should give the basis for various new research.

The first volume to appear:

This six volume study places the poetry of the period between the Middle Ages and the modern age for the first time in a broad social and cultural context which extends far beyond the normal limitations of epoch and genre. A wide variety of cultural manifestations of the time, little considered until now, are examined. The volume now appearing is »Baroque – Mysticism«. It shows how the »seeing« mystic of the seventeenth century makes the divine accessible through the medium of poetry. In sanctifying the poetry, he at the same time turns the Christian pursuit of salvation into something more aesthetic and secular.

Hugh Powell Trammels of Tradition

Aspects of German life in the seventeenth century and their impact on the contemporary literature

C. 300 p. with c. 35 plates. Cloth c. US-$ 58.-. ISBN 3-484-10583-6

This book is not another historical account of German Baroque literature. Instead, the author identifies some close affinities between the interests of seventeenth-century poets and novelists and the special concerns of contemporary political philosophers, mathematicians, technologists, medical practitioners and others in the German-speaking territories. He also demonstrates that in those days scientists and men of letters were not conceptually and linguistically estranged. Through a selection and scrutiny of imaginative and didactic writings in the rhetorical tradition, of literature for recreation, of geographical surveys, accounts of travel abroad, books disseminating mathematical and scientific phenomena in popular forms, down to newsheets and street ballads light is shed on the rival claims of traditional practices and embedded attitudes on the one hand, and venturesome modes of thinking and investigation on the other.

Verantwortung und Utopie

Zur Literatur der Goethezeit

Ein Symposium

Edited by WOLFGANG WITTKOWSKI

[= Responsibility and Utopia. On the literature of the Goethe period. A symposium.]

C. 460 p. Cloth c. US-$ 76.-. ISBN 3-484-10553-4

In order to clarify the meaning of »utopian thought« as often applied to authors of the Goethezeit, contributors refer to »responsibility«, a term emerging as the main opposition to »utopian thinking« in recent political debate. As a result, the unprecise use of the term »utopian« is being exposed, discussed and more clearly defined in respect to individual authors and works.

THE TRUTH IN PAINTING

JACQUES DERRIDA

Translated by Geoff Bennington and Ian McLeod

Cézanne wrote to Emile Bernard: "I owe you the truth in painting and I will tell it to you." It is this "truth"—how it is to be understood, whether it can be rendered (and what it is to render)—that Derrida pursues here through essays occasioned by Kant's Critique of Judgment, Heidegger's Origin of the Work of Art, and the work of Adami and of Titus-Carmel.

TRADITION COUNTER TRADITION

Love and the Form of Fiction

JOSEPH ALLEN BOONE

Foreword by

Catharine R. Stimpson

"Written from a feminist point of view, Tradition Counter Tradition is a comprehensive, learned, and well-written account of the deep contradictions that lie at the heart of the Anglo-American literary treatment of romantic marriage. Boone's impeccable scholarship and critical penetration throw light on texts traditional and counter-traditional from antiquity to the twentieth century."—Jean H. Hagstrum, Northwestern University

THE FAMILY IDIOT

Gustave Flaubert, 1821–1857
 Volume 2

JEAN-PAUL SARTRE

Translated by Carol Cosman

Volume 2 of the first English translation of this monumental work takes a reader through Flaubert's adolescence well into his evolution as an artist.

Comments on Volume 1:

"The publication of The Family Idiot should be welcomed as a major cultural event."—Leo Bersani, New Republic

"This vast work is now beginning to appear in a splendid translation by Carol Cosman . . . Sartre called The Family Idiot a 'true novel,' and it does tell a story and eventually reach a shattering climax."—Fredric Jameson, New York Times Book Review
