

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

LOYAL NATIONAL REPEAL ASSOCIATION.

The following is a copy of the Address, which was read by the Liberator, at the meeting on Wednesday:—

The Committee to whom the Address from the Cincinnati Irish Repeal Association, on the subject of negro slavery in the United States of America, was referred, have agreed to the following report:—

To D. T. DISNEY, Corresponding Secretary,

W. HUNTER, Esq. Vice President,

PATRICK McCLOSKEY, Esq.

P. CODY, Esq.

T. CONNELLY, Esq. and

STEPHEN BONNER, Esq.

} The Executive Committee of the Cincinnati Repeal Association.

“Corn Exchange Rooms, Dublin,

11th October, 1843.

“GENTLEMEN:—We have read with the deepest affliction, not unmingled with some surprise and much indignation, your detailed and anxious vindication of the most hideous crime that has ever stained humanity—the slavery of men of color in the United States of America. We are lost in utter amazement at the perversion of mind and depravity of heart which your address evinces. How can the generous, the charitable, the humane, the noble emotions of the Irish heart have become extinct amongst you? How can your nature be so totally changed as that you should become the apologists and advocates of that execrable system which makes man the property of his fellow man—destroys the foundation of all moral and social virtues—condemns to ignorance, immorality, and irreligion, millions of our fellow creatures—renders the slave hopeless of relief, and perpetuates oppression by law, and in the name of what you call a Constitution?

“It was not in Ireland you learned this cruelty. Your mothers were gentle, kind, and humane. Their bosoms overflowed with the honey of human charity. Your sisters are probably many of them still amongst us, and participate in all that is good and benevolent in sentiment and action. How then can you have become so depraved? How can your souls have become stained with a darkness blacker than the negro's skin? You say you have no peculiar interest in negro slavery. Would that you had! for it might be some palliation of your crime! but alas! you have inflicted upon us the horror of beholding you the volenteers advocates of despotism in its most frightful state: of slavery in its most loathsome and unrelenting form.

“We were unhappily prepared to expect some fearful exhibition of this description. There has been a testimony borne against the Irish, by birth or descent, in America, by a person fully informed as to the facts, and incapable of the slightest misrepresentation—a noble of nature more than of titled birth—a man gifted with the highest order of talent and the most generous emotions of the heart—the great, the good Lord Morpeth; he who, in the House of Commons, boldly asserted the superior social morality of the poorer classes of the Irish over any other people—he, the best friend of any of the Saxon race that Ireland or the Irish ever knew—he, amidst congregated thousands at Exeter Hall, in London, mournfully, but firmly, denounced the Irish in America as being amongst the worst enemies of the negro slaves and other men of color.

“It is, therefore, our solemn and sacred duty to warn you, in words already used, and much misunderstood by you to ‘come out of her,’ not thereby meaning to ask you to come out of America! but out of the councils of the iniquitous, and out of the congregation of the wicked, who consider man a chattel and a property, and liberty an inconvenience. Yes, we tell you to come out of such assemblages; but we did not, and do not, invite you to return to Ireland. The volunteer defenders of slavery, surrounded by one thousand crimes, would find neither sympathy nor support amongst native uncontaminated Irishmen.

“Your advocacy of slavery is founded upon a gross error. You take for granted that man can be the property of his fellow man; you speak in terms of indignation of those who would deprive white men of their ‘property’ and thereby render them incapable of supporting their families in affluence. You forget the other side of the picture; you have neither sorrow nor sympathy for the sufferings of those who are iniquitously compelled to labor for the affluence of others, those who work without wages, who toil without recompense, who spend their lives in procuring for others the splendor and wealth in which they do not participate. You totally forget the sufferings of the wretched black men who are deprived of their ALL without any compensation or redress. If you yourselves—all of you, or if any of you—were, without crime or offense committed by you, handed over into perpetual slavery—if you were compelled to work from sunrise to sunset without wages—supplied only with such coarse food and raiment as would keep you in working order—if, when your 'owner' fell into debt, you were sold to pay his debts, not your own—if it were made a crime to teach you to read and write—if you were liable to be separated, in this distribution of assets, from your wives and your children—if you, above all, were to fall into the hands of a brutal master—and you condescend to admit that there are some brutal masters in America—if, among all these circumstances, some friendly spirit of a more generous order were desirous to give liberty to you and to your families, with what ineffable disgust would not you laugh to scorn those who should traduce the generous spirits who would relieve you, as you now, pseudo Irishmen—shame upon you!—have traduced and vilified the abolitionists of North America.

"But you come forth with a justification, forsooth! You say that the Constitution in America prohibits the abolition of slavery. Paltry and miserable subterfuge! The Constitution of America is founded upon the Declaration of Independence; that Declaration published to the world its glorious principles—that charter of your freedom contained these emphatic words:—

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: that ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that amongst these are life, LIBERTY, and the pursuit of happiness.' And the conclusion of that address is in these words: 'For the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge each other our lives, our fortunes, and our SACRED HONOR!'

"There is American honor for you! There is a profane allusion to the adorable Creator!

"Recollect that the declaration does not limit the equality of man on the right of life and liberty to the white, to the brown, or to the copper-colored races; it includes all races—it excludes none.

"We do not deign to argue with you, on the terms of the American Constitution, and yet we cannot help asserting that in that Constitution the words 'slavery' or 'slave' are not to be found. There are, indeed, the words, 'persons bound to labor,' but it is not said how bound; and a constitutional lawyer or judge, construing the American Constitution, with a reference to the Declaration of Independence, which is its basis, would not hesitate to decide that 'bound to labor' ought, in a court of justice, to mean, 'bound by contract to labor,' and should not be held to imply 'forced or compelled to labor,' in the absence of all contract, and for the exclusive benefit of others.

"However, we repeat that we do not deign to argue this point with you, as we proclaim to the world our conviction that no constitutional law can create or sanction slavery. Slavery is repugnant to the first principles of society; but it is enough for us to say, as regards Americans, that it is utterly repugnant to that declaration of equality of all men, and to the inalienable right of all men to life and liberty. To this declaration the free citizens of the United States have, in the persons of their ancestors, solemnly pledged their 'sacred honor.'

"We shall at once show you how that 'sacred honor' is basely violated, and also demonstrate how totally devoid of candor your address is, inasmuch as you rely on the constitution of the American States as precluding the abolition of slavery, whilst you totally omit all mention of one district, which the constitutional law alleged by you does not reach—we mean the District of Columbia.

"In the District of Columbia there is no constitutional law to prevent the Congress from totally abolishing slavery within that district. Your capital is there—the temple of American freedom is there—the hall of your republican representatives—the hall of your republican senators—the national palace of your republican President is there—and slavery is there, too, in its most revolting form. The slave trade is there—the most disgusting traffic in human beings is there. Human flesh is bought and sold like swine in the pig market—aye, in your capital, your Washington! Yes, let Americans be as proud as they please, this black spot is on their escutcheon. Even under the shade of the temple of their constitution, the man of color crawls a slave, and the tawny American stalks a tyrant.

"The cruelty of the slave principle rests not there—it goes much further. The wretched slaves are totally prohibited even from petitioning Congress—the poor and paltry privilege even of prayer is denied them; and you, even you, friends, Irishmen, are the advocates and vindicators of such a system. What! would not you at least insist that their groans should be heard?

"It is carried still further. Even the freeborn white Americans are not allowed to petition upon any subject, including the question of slavery: or, at least, no such petition can be read aloud or printed; and although the Congress is entitled to abolish slavery in Columbia, the door for petition, praying that abolition, is closed, without the power of being opened.

"We really think that men who came from generous and warm-hearted Ireland, should shrink into nonentity rather than become the advocates and defendants of the system of slavery. But we trust the voice of indignant Ireland will scathe them, and prevent them from repeating such a crime.

"In another point of view, your address is, if possible, more culpable. You state that before the abolitionists proclaimed the wish to have slavery abolished, several slaveholding States were preparing for the gradual emancipation of their negroes, and that humane individuals in other States were about to adopt similar measures.

"We utterly deny your assertion, and we defy you to show any single instance of preparatory steps taken by any State for the emancipation of the negroes before the abolition demand was raised. You violate truth in that assertion. There were no such preparations. It is pure fiction, invented by slaveholders out of their unjust animosity to the abolitionists. It is said that the fear of abolition has rendered the slaveholders more strict, harsh, and cruel towards their wretched slaves, and that they would be more gentle and humane if they were not afraid of the abolitionists. We repeat that this is not true, and is merely an attempt to cast blame on those who coalesce to put an end to negro slavery.

"It is in the same spirit that the criminal calumniate his prosecutor, and the felon reviles his accuser. It is, therefore, utterly untrue, that the slaveholders have made the chains of the negro more heavy through any fear of abolition.

"Yet, if you tell the truth—if the fact be that the negro is made to suffer for the zeal of the abolitionists—if he is treated with increased cruelty by reason of the fault of the friends of abolition, then, indeed, the slaveholders must be a truly satanic race. Their conduct, according to you, is diabolical. The abolitionists commit an offense, and the unhappy negroes are punished. The abolitionists violate the law of property, and the penalty of their crime is imposed upon the negro! Can anything be more repugnant to every idea of justice? Yet this is your statement.

"We, on the other hand, utterly deny the truth of your allegations, and where we find you calumniate the slaveholders, we become their advocates against your calumny. You calumniate every body—slaves, abolitionists, and slave-owners; framers of constitutions, makers of laws, every body! The slaveholders are not favorites of ours; but we will do them justice, and will not permit you to impute an impossible crime to them.

"You tell us with an air of triumph, that public opinion in your country is the great lawgiver. If it be so, how much does it enhance the guilt of your conduct, that you seek to turn public opinion against the slave and in favor of the slaveholder!—that you laud the master as generous and humane, and disparage, as much as you can, the unhappy slave, instead of influencing, as Irishmen ought to do, the public mind in favor of the oppressed. You carry your exaggerations to a ludicrous pitch, denoting your utter ignorance of the history of the human race. You say, 'that the negro is really inferior as a race; that slavery has stamped its debasing influence upon the African; that between him and the white almost a century would be required to elevate the character of the one, and to destroy the antipathies of the other.' You add—we use your words—'The very odor of the negro is almost insufferable to the white, and however much humanity may lament it, we make no rash declaration when we say the two races cannot exist together on equal terms under our government and our institutions.'

"We quote this paragraph at full length because it is replete with your mischievous errors and guilty mode of thinking.

"In the first place, as to the odor of the negroes, we are quite aware that they have no as yet come to use much of the otto of roses or eau de Cologne. But we implore of your fastidiousness to recollect that multitudes of the children of white men have negro women for their mothers, and that our British travelers complain, in loud and bitter terms, of the over-powering stench of stale tobacco-spittle, as the prevailing 'odor' amongst the native free Americans. It would be, perhaps, better to check that nasal sensibility on both sides, on the part of whites as well as of blacks. But it is indeed deplorable that you should use a ludicrous assertion of that description as one of the inducements to prevent the abolition of slavery. The negroes would certainly smell as sweet when free as they now do being slaves.

"Your important allegation is that the negroes are naturally an inferior race. That is a totally gratuitous assertion upon your part. In America, you can have no opportunity of seeing the negro educated. On the contrary, in most of your states education is a crime. Sacred Heaven! A crime to educate even a free negro. How, then, can you judge of the negro race when you see them despised and contemned by the educated classes, reviled and looked down upon as inferior. The negro race has naturally some of the finest qualities. They are naturally gentle, generous, humane, and very grateful for kindness. They are as brave and as fearless as any other of the races of human beings; but the blessings of education are kept from them, and they are judged of, not as they would be with proper cultivation, but as they are rendered by cruel and debasing oppression. It is as old as the days of Homer, who truly asserts that the day which sees a man a slave takes away half his worth. Slavery actually brutalizes human beings. It is about sixty years ago, when one of the Sheiks, not far south of the Fex, in Morocco, who was in the habit of accumulating white slaves, upon being strongly remonstrated with by an European power, gave for his reply, that by his own experience he found it quite manifest that the white men were of an inferior race, and intended by nature for slaves; and he produced his own brutalized white slaves to illustrate the truth of his assertion. And a case of an American, with a historic name, John Adams, is quite familiar. Some 25 years ago, not more, John Adams was the sole survivor of an American crew, wrecked on the African coast. He was taken into the interior as a slave of an Arab chief. He was only for three years a slave, and the English and American consuls, having been informed of a white man's slavery, claimed him, and obtained his liberation. In the short space of three years he had become completely brutalized; he had completely forgotten the English language, without having acquired the native tongue; he spoke a kind of gabble, as unintellectual as the dialects of most of your negro slaves; and many months elapsed before he received his former habits and ideas.

"It is also a curious fact, as connected with America, that the children of the Anglo-Saxon race, and of other Europeans born in America, were for many years considered, as a degraded and inferior class—indeed, it was admitted as if it were an axiom, that the native born American was in nothing equal to his European progenitor, and so far from the fact being disputed, many philosophic dissertations were published, endeavoring to account for the alleged debasement. The only doubt was about the cause of it. 'Nobody doubted' (to use your words) that the native born Americans 'were really an inferior race.' Nobody dares to say so now, and nobody thinks so.

"Let it, then, be recollected that you have never yet seen the negro educated. An English traveler through Brazil, some few years ago, mentions having known a negro who was a priest, and who was a learned, pious and exemplary man in his sacerdotal functions. We have been lately informed of two negroes being educated at the Propaganda and ordained priests, both having distinguished themselves in their scientific and theological course.

"The French papers say that one of them celebrated mass, and delivered a short but able sermon before Louis Phillippe. It is believed that they have both gone out with the Right Rev. Dr. Barron, on the African mission.

"We repeat, therefore, that to judge properly of the negro, you should see him educated, and treated with the respect due to a fellow creature, uninsulted by the filthy aristocracy of the skin, and untarnished to the eye of the white by any associations connected with his state of slavery.

"We next refer to your declaration that the two races, viz. the black and white, cannot exist together on equal terms under your government and your institutions. This is an extraordinary assertion to be made at the present day. You allude, indeed, to Antigua and the Bermudas: but we will take you to where the experiment has been successfully made upon a large scale—namely, to Jamaica.

"There the two races are upon a perfect equality in point of law. There is no master—there is no slave. The law does not recognize the slightest distinction between the races. You have borrowed the far greater part of your address from the cant phraseology which the West Indian slave-owners, and especially those of Jamaica, made use of before emancipation. They used to assert (as you do now) that abolition meant destruction; that to give freedom to the negro, would be to pronounce the assassination of the white; that the negroes, as soon as freed, would massacre their former owners, and destroy their wives and families. In short, your prophecies of the destructive effects of emancipation are but faint and foolish echoes of the prophetic apprehensions of the British slave-owners. They might, perhaps, have believed their own assertions, because the emancipation of the negroes was then an untried experiment. But you—you are deprived of any excuse for the re-assertion of a disproved calumny.

"The emancipation has taken place. The compensation given by England was not given to the negroes, who were the only persons that deserved compensation. It was given to the so-called 'owners'—it was an additional wrong—an additional cause of irritation to the negroes.

"But, gracious Heaven! how nobly did that good and kindly race, the negroes, falsify the calumnious apprehensions of their taskmasters! Was there one single murder consequent on the emancipation? Was there one riot—one tumult—even one assault? Was there even one single white person injured either in person or property? Was there any property spoiled or laid waste? The proportion of negroes in Jamaica, is as 300 to 60, or 80 per cent. Yet the most perfect tranquility has followed the emancipation. The criminal courts are almost unemployed. Nine-tenths of the jails are empty and open; universal tranquility reigns, although the landed proprietors have made use of the harshest landlord power to exact the hardest terms, by way of rent, from the negro, and have also endeavored to extort from him the largest possible quantity of labor for the smallest wages.

"Yet the kindly negro race have not retaliated by one single act of violence or of vengeance. The two races exist together upon equal terms under the British government and under British institutions.

"Or shall you say that the British government and British institutions are preferable to yours? The vain and vaporing spirit of mistaken republicanism will not permit you to avow the British superiority. You are bound, however reluctantly, to admit that superiority, or else to admit the falsity of your own assertions. Nothing can, in truth, be more ludicrous than your declamation in favor of slavery. It, however rises to the very border of blasphemy. Your words are, 'God forbid that we should advocate human bondage in any shape.' Oh! shame be upon you! How can you take the name of the all-good Creator thus in vain? What are you doing? Is not the entire of your address an advocacy of human bondage?

"Another piece of silliness—You allege that it is the abolitionists who make the slave restless with his condition, and that they scatter the seeds of discontent.

"How can you treat us with such contempt as to use assertions of that kind in your address? How can you think we can be so devoid of intellect, as to believe the negro would not know the miseries of slavery, which he feels every hour of the four and twenty, unless he were told by some abolitionists that slavery was a miserable condition?

"There is nothing that makes us think so badly of you as your strain of ribaldry in attacking the abolitionists. The desire to procure abolition is in itself a virtue, and deserves our love for its charitable disposition as it does respect and veneration for its courage under unfavorable circumstances. Instead of the ribaldry of your attack upon the abolitionists, you ought to respect and countenance them. If they err by excessive zeal, they err in a righteous and holy cause. You would do well to check their errors and mitigate their zeal within the bounds of strict propriety, but if you had the genuine feelings of Irishmen, you would never confound their errors with their virtues. In truth, we much fear, or rather we should candidly say, we readily believe that you attribute to them imaginary errors for no other reason than that they really possess one brilliant virtue, namely, the love of human freedom in intense perfection.

"Again we have to remark that you exaggerate exceedingly when you state that there are fifteen millions of the white population in America, whose security and happiness are connected with the maintenance of the system of negro slavery. On the contrary, the system of slavery inflicts nothing but mischief on the far greater part of the inhabitants of America; the only place in which individual interest is connected with slavery are the slavholding States. Now, in those States, almost without an exception, (if, indeed, there may be any exception,) the people of color greatly exceed the owners; and thus, even if any injury were to be inflicted on the slavholders, by depriving them of their slaves, the advantage would be abundantly counterbalanced and compensated for, by the infinitely greater number of persons who would thus be restored to that greater of human blessings, personal liberty: thus the noble Benthamite maxim, of doing the greatest possible good to the greatest possible number, would be amply carried out into effect. By the emancipation of the negroes, you charge the abolitionists as with a crime that they encouraged a negro flying from Kentucky, to steal a horse from an inhabitant of Ohio, in order to aid him, if necessary, in making his escape. We are not, upon full reflection, sufficiently versed in causticity to decide whether, under such circumstances, the taking of the horse would be excusable or not. But even conceding that it would be sinful, we are of this quite certain, that there is not one of you that address us, who, if he were under similar circumstances, that is, having no other means of escaping perpetual slavery, would not make free with your neighbor's horse, to effectuate your just and reasonable purpose. And we are also sure of this, that there is not one of you, who, if he were compelled to spend the rest of his life as a personal slave, worked and beaten and sold and transferred from hand to hand, and separated, at his master's caprice, from wife and family—consigned to ignorance—working without wages—toiling without reward, without any other stimulant to that toil and labor than the driver's cart-whip:—we do say that there is not one of you who would not think the name of pickpocket, thief, or felon, would not be too courteous a name for the being who kept you in such thralldom.

"We cannot avoid repeating our astonishment that you, Irishmen, should be so devoid of every trace of humanity as to become the voluntary and pecuniarily disinterested advocates of human slavery, and especially that you should be so in America; but what excites our unconquerable loathing is, to find that in your address, you speak of man being the property of man—of one human being being the property of another, with as little doubt, hesitation, or repugnance as if you were speaking of the beasts of the field. It is this that fills us with utter astonishment—it is this that makes us disclaim you as countrymen. We cannot bring ourselves to believe that you breathed your natal air in Ireland—Ireland, the first of all the nations of the earth that abolished the dealing in slaves—the slave trade of that day was, curiously enough, a slave trade in British youths—Ireland, that never was stained with negro slave trading, Ireland, that never committed an offense against the men of color—Ireland, that never fitted out a single vessel for the traffic in blood on the African coast.

"It is, to be sure, afflicting and heart-rending to us to think, that so many of the Irish in America should be so degenerate as to be amongst the worst enemies of the people of color. Alas, alas, we have that fact placed beyond doubt, by the indisputable testimony of Lord Morpeth.—This is a foul blot that we would fain wipe off the escutcheon of expatriated Irishmen.

"Have you enough of the genuine Irishman left amongst you to ask what it is we require you to do? It is this:

"First—We call upon you in the sacred name of humanity never again to volunteer on behalf of the oppressor: nor even for any self-interest to vindicate that heinous crime, personal slavery.

"Secondly—We ask you to assist in every way you can, in promoting the education of the free man of color, and in discountenancing the foolish feeling of selfishness, of that criminal selfishness, which makes the white man treat the man of color as a degraded or inferior being.

"Thirdly—We ask you to assist in obtaining for the free man of color the full benefit of all the rights and franchises of a freeman, in whatever state he may inhabit.

"Fourthly—We ask you to exert yourselves in endeavoring to procure for the man of color, in every case, the benefit of a trial by jury, and especially where a man insisting that he is a freeman is claimed to be a slave.

"Fifthly—We ask you to exert yourselves in every possible way to induce slave-owners to emancipate as many slaves as possible. The Quakers in America have several societies for this purpose. Why should not the Irish imitate them in that virtue?

"Sixthly—We ask you to exert yourselves in all the ways you possibly can, to put an end to the internal slave trade of the states—the breeding of slaves for sale is probably the most hideous kind; and if there were no other crime committed by the Americans, this alone would place the advocates, supporters and practisers of American Slavery, in the lowest grade of criminals.

"Seventhly—We ask you to use every exertion in your power to procure the abolition of slavery by the Congress in the District of Columbia.

"Eighthly—We ask you to use your best exertions to compel the Congress to receive and read the petitions of the wretched negroes, and above all, the petitions of their white advocates.

"Ninthly—We ask you never to cease your efforts until the crime of which Lord Morpeth has accused the Irish in America, 'of being the worst enemies of the men of color,' shall be atoned for and blotted out, and effaced forever.

"You will ask how you shall do all these things? You have already answered that question yourselves, for you have said that public opinion is the law of America. Contribute, then, each in his sphere, to make up that public opinion. Where you have the electoral franchise, give your votes to none but those who will assist you in so holy a struggle.

"Under a popular government, the man who has right, and reason, and justice, and charity, and Christianity itself at his side, has great instruments of legislation and legal power. He has the elements about him of the greatest utility; and even if he should not succeed, he can have the heart-soothing consolation of having endeavored to do great and good actions. He can enjoy, even in defeat, the sweet comfort of having endeavored to promote benevolence and charity.

"It is no excuse to allege that the Congress is restricted from emancipating the slaves by one general law. Each particular state has that power within its own precincts; and there is every reason to be convinced that Maryland and Virginia would have followed the example of New York, and long ago abolished slavery but for the diabolical practice of 'raising' (as you call it) slaves for the southern market of pestilence and death.

"Irishmen, and the sons of Irishmen, have, many of them, risen to high distinction and power in America. Why should not Irishmen, and the sons of Irishmen, write their names in the brightest pages of the chapter of humanity and benevolence in American story.

"Irishmen, our chairman ventures to think, and we agree with him, that he has claims on the attention of Irishmen in every quarter of the globe; the Scotch and French philosophy have proved, by many years' experiment, that the Irishman stands first, among the races of man, in his physical and bodily powers; America and Europe bear testimony to the intellectual capacity of Irishmen. Lord Morpeth has demonstrated in the British parliament the superior morality of the humble classes of Irish, in all social and family relations. The religious fidelity of the Irish nation is blazoned in glorious and proverbial certainty and splendor.

"Sons of Ireland! descendants of the kind in heart and affectionate in disposition! think, oh! think only with pity and compassion on your colored fellow-creatures in America. Offer them the hand of kindly help; soothe their sorrows; soothe their oppressions; join with your countrymen at home in one cry of horror against the oppressor—in one cry of sympathy with the enslaved and oppressed—

'Till prone in the dust slavery shall be hur'd;
Its name and nature blotted from the world.'

"We cannot close our observations upon the unseemly as well as silly attacks you make upon the advocates of abolition, without reminding you that you have borrowed this tone of thought from the persons who opposed Catholic emancipation in Ireland, or who were the pretended friends of the Catholics. Some of you must recollect that it was the custom of such persons to allege that but for the 'violence' and 'misconduct' of the agitators, and particularly of our chairman, the Protestants were about to emancipate the Catholics gradually. It was the constant theme of the newspaper press, and even of the speeches in the house of parliament, that the violence and misconduct of the agitators prevented emancipation. It was the burthen of many pamphlets, and especially of two, which were both written under the title of 'Faction Unmasked,' by Protestants of great ability. They asserted themselves to be the friends of emancipation in the abstract, but they alleged that it was impossible to grant emancipation to persons whose leaders misconducted themselves as the agitators did. They gratified their hatred to the Catholics as you gratify your bad feeling towards the negroes, by abuse of the Catholic leaders as virulent as yours is against abolitionists. But they deceived nobody, neither do you deceive anybody. Every human being perceives the futility and folly of your attacks upon the abolitionists, and understands that those attacks are but the exhibition of rancor and malignity against the tried friends of humanity.

"You say that the abolitionists are fanatics and bigots, and especially entertain a virulent hatred and unchristian zeal against Catholicity and the Irish. We do not mean to deny, nor do we wish to conceal, that there are amongst the abolitionists many wicked and calumniating enemies of Catholicity and the Irish, especially in that most intolerant class, the Wesleyan Methodists. But the best way to disarm their malice is not by giving up to them the side of humanity, while you yourselves take up the side of slavery; but on the contrary, by taking a superior station of Christian virtue in the cause of benevolence and charity, and in zeal for the freedom of all mankind.

"We wish we could burn into your souls the turpitude attached to the Irish in America by Lord Morpeth's charge. Recollect that it reflects dishonor, not only upon you, but upon the land of your birth. There is but one way of effacing such a disgrace, and that is, by becoming the most kindly towards the colored population; and the most energetic in working out in detail, as well as in general principle, the amelioration of the state of the miserable bondmen.

"You tell us, indeed, that many clergymen, and especially the Catholic clergymen, are ranged on the side of the slave-holders. We do not believe the accusation.

"The Catholic clergy may endure, but they assuredly do not encourage, the slave-owners.—Indeed, we have heard it said that some Catholic clergymen have slaves of their own; but, it is added, and we are assured positively, that no Irish Catholic clergyman is a slave-owner. At all events, every Catholic knows how distinctly slave-holding, and especially slave-trading, is condemned by the Catholic Church. That most eminent man, his Holiness the present Pope, has by an allocution, published throughout the world; condemned all dealing and traffic in slaves.—Nothing can be more distinct nor more poseful than the Pope's denunciation of that most abominable crime. Yet it subsists in a more abominable form than his Holiness could possibly describe, in the traffic which still exists in the sale of slaves from one State of America to another. What, then, are we to think of you, Irish Catholics, who send us an elaborate vindication of slavery without the slightest censure of that hateful crime: a crime which the Pope has so completely condemned—namely, the diabolical raising of slaves for sale, and selling them to other states.

"If you be Catholics, you should devote your time and best exertions to working out the pious intentions of his Holiness. Yet you prefer—oh! sorrow and shame!—to volunteer your vindication of every thing that belongs to the guilt of slavery.

"If you be Christians at all, recollect that slavery is opposed to the first, the highest, and the greatest principles of Christianity, which teach us 'to love the great and good God above all things whatsoever, and next to love our fellow-men as ourselves—which command us to do unto others as we would be done by;' these sacred principles are inconsistent with the horrors and crimes of slavery; sacred principles which have already banished domestic bondage from civilized Europe, and which will also, in God's own good time, banish it from America, despite the advocacy of such puny declaimers as you are.

"How bitterly have we been afflicted at perceiving, by the American newspapers, that recently, in the city which you inhabit, an opportunity was given to the Irish to exhibit benevolence and humanity to a colored fellow-creature, and was given in vain! We allude to the case of the girl 'LAVINIA,' who was a slave in another state, and brought by her owner into that of Ohio. She by that means became entitled to her freedom if she had but one friend to assert it for her. She did find friends. May the great God of heaven bless them! Were they Irish? Alas! alas! not one. You sneer at the sectaries. Behold how they here conquer you in goodness and charity. The owner's name, it appears, was Scanlan, unhappily a thorough Irish name. And he it appears has boasted that he took his revenge by the most fiendish cruelty, not upon Lavinia or her protectors, for they were not in his power, but upon the unoffending father, mother, and family.

"And this is the system which you, Irishmen, through many folio pages of wicked declamation, seek at least to palliate, if not to justify! Our cheeks burn with shame to think that such a monster as Scanlan could trace his pedigree to Ireland. And yet, you Irishmen, stand by, in the attitude rather of friends and supporters, than of the impugnors of the monster's cruelty. And you prefer to string together pages of cruelty and heartless sophistry, in defence of the source of his crimes, rather than take part against him.

"Perhaps it would offend your fastidiousness if such a man were compared to a pickpocket or felon. We respect your prejudices, and call him no reproachful Lavinia name—it is indeed unnecessary.

"We conclude by abjuring you and all other Irishmen in America, in the name of your father-land—in the name of humanity—in the name of the God of mercy and charity—we conjure you, Irishmen and the sons of Irishmen, to abandon forever all defence of the hideous negro slavery system. Let it no more be said that your feelings are made so obtuse by the air of America, that you cannot feel, as Catholics and Christians ought to feel, this truth—this plain truth—THAT ONE MAN CANNOT HAVE ANY PROPERTY IN ANOTHER MAN. There is not one of you who does not recognize that principle in his own person; and yet we perceive—and this agonizes us almost to madness—that you, boasting an Irish descent should, without the instigation of any pecuniary or interested motive, but out of the sheer and single love of wickedness and crime, come forward as the volunteer defenders of the most degrading species of human slavery! Woe! woe! woe!

"There is one consolation still, amid the pulsations of our hearts: there are, there must be, Irishmen in America,—men of sound heads and Irish hearts—who will assist us to wipe off the foul stain which Lord Morpeth's proven charge has inflicted on the Irish character—who will hold out of fellowship, with a heart in that hand, to every honest man, of every caste and color, who will sustain the cause of humanity and honor, and scorn the paltry advocates of slavery—who will show that the Irish heart is in America as benevolent and as replete with charitable emotions, as in any other clime on the face of the earth.

"We conclude. The spirit of democratic liberty is defiled by the continuance of negro slavery in the United States. The United States themselves are degraded below the most uncivilized nations by the atrocious inconsistency of talking of liberty and practicing tyranny in its worst shape. The Americans attempt to palliate their iniquity by the futile excuse of personal interest; but the Irish, who have not even that futile excuse, and yet justify slavery, are utterly indefensible.

"Once more, and for the last time, we call upon you to come out of the councils of the slave owners, and at all events to free yourselves from participating in their guilt.

"Irishmen, I call on you to join in crushing slavery, and in giving liberty to every man, of every caste, creed and color.

"DANIEL O'CONNELL,
Chairman of the Committee."

YALE UNIVERSITY

a39002

002553197b

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY

Cb81
265

Digitization Support from
MICROSOFT

Original from
YALE UNIVERSITY