MOHAMMED M. AMAN, dean of the Palmer Graduate Library School, Long Island University, has been appointed dean of the School of Library Science, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

At Long Island, Aman helped to introduce a six-year degree program, an undergraduate program in information studies, a specialization in business librarianship, and foreign exchange programs.

Before joining the faculty at Long Island, Aman was director of the division of Library and Information Science at St. John's University, New York. During his deanship, St. John's received its first national ALA accreditation.

Mohammed M. Aman

Aman has also served on the library faculties of the Pratt Institute, Duquesne University, and Allegheny Community College, and has worked as a research assistant at Knowledge Availability Systems Center in Pittsburgh and as a reference librarian at the Egyptian National Library.

He holds a B.A. from Cairo University, Egypt, an M.S.(L.S.) from Columbia University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh.

An active member of the American Library Association, he has served as chair of the International Relations Roundtable, as a member of the International Relations Committee and the Grants Committee of the Library Education Division, and as a member of the ACRL Publications in Librarianship Editorial Board.

He has served as consultant to UNESCO in Bahrain, UNIDO in Algeria, U.S. AID in Upper Volta, and to the governments of Kuwait, Egypt, Libya, and Morocco, and to academic and special libraries in the United States.

ALLAN J. DYSON is the new university librarian at the University of California, Santa Cruz campus. Dyson goes to Santa Cruz from the University of California, Berkeley, where he has been head of the Moffitt Undergraduate Library since 1971.

At Santa Cruz, Dyson will direct a staff of 100 employees, oversee an annual budget of $2,900,000, and supervise the growth and management of library collections that now number 567,000 volumes.

After graduating from Harvard in 1964 with a B.A. in government, Dyson joined the U.S. Army as a lieutenant and served as chief of the Administrative Services Offices at Watertown Arsenal in Massachusetts from 1964 to 1966. He earned his M.S. degree in Library Science from the Simmons College School of Library Science in 1968 and joined the staff of the Columbia University Libraries as assistant to the director, a position he held until his appointment at Berkeley in 1971.

ACRL members know Dyson well for his service as editor of College & Research Libraries News from January 1973 to December 1974. He served on the editorial board of College & Research Libraries during the same period and became a member of the editorial board of Choice in 1975. He is currently chair of the Choice board and was a member of the Search Committee that Back Order Problems?

We are tenacious at Book House. In our concern about your order, we continue to bird-dog it until we deliver the book or find it out-of-print. Only upon your instructions do we cancel. We call our program "Concerned Service" and it pays off for academic libraries throughout the U.S.A. Let us show you! For any book in print (U.S. and Canada), send your order to the Book House.
