GERARD B. McCABE has been appointed director of libraries at Clarion State College, Pennsylvania, effective July 1. He had been director of university libraries at Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond, since 1970. During his 12 years in Richmond, he guided the completion of additions to the Tompkins-McCaw and James Branch Cabell Libraries of the university.

Gerard B. McCabe

McCabe earned his bachelor's degree at Manhattan College, his MLS at the University of Michigan, and a master's in English at Michigan State University. In 1967-1970 he was assistant director for planning and development at the University of South Florida and prior to that associate director of libraries at the University of Arkansas (1966-1967), acquisition librarian at the University of South Florida (1959-1966), and he served in the libraries of the University of Nebraska, Michigan State, and the University of Michigan.

Active in ALA's Library Administration and Management Association, McCabe was most recently chair of the Building and Equipment Section. He is co-editor of Advances in Library Administration and Organization.

RONALD E. WYLLYS has been named dean of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science at the University of Texas, Austin.

A specialist in research methods emphasizing statistics, systems analysis, library automation and operations research, Wyllys joined the UT faculty in 1972 as an assistant professor. He received a Ph.D. in information science from the University of Wisconsin in 1974 and holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics from Arizona State University (1950).

His previous professional experience includes positions as chief systems analyst for the University of Wisconsin Libraries (1966-1969); computer systems specialist for System Development Corporation (1961-1966); associate in information retrieval for Planning Research Corporation in Los Angeles (1959-1961); and mathematician for the U.S. Defense Department (1954-1959).

Articles by Wyllys have appeared in Collection Management, Communications of the Association for Computing Machinery, and Library Trends. He has also co-authored a book on national document-handling systems.

JUDITH A. SESSIONS has accepted the position of assistant university librarian for administrative services at the Gelman Library, George Washington University. The holder of an MLS degree from Florida State University (1971), Sessions was previously employed at Mt. Vernon College, Washington, D.C., as director of the Library/Learning Resources Center. Last April she had been appointed director of library services at Stockton State College, Pomona, New Jersey, but sought other employment when Stockton's Board of Trustees took several months to examine the college's search pro-

ACRL Library Statistics

In Philadelphia the ACRL Board of Directors voted to repeat the statistical survey of non-ARL university libraries which was first undertaken in 1978-79. (Copies of the results of that survey are still available from ACRL at $5 for members and $7.50 for non-members.) At the end of September a questionnaire based on the survey done by the Association of Research Libraries was sent to the 91 U.S. university libraries and 10 Canadian university libraries which are not members of ARL, asking for data for the 1981-82 school year. The questionnaires are due back at ACRL by December 1 and publication of the data is planned for Spring, 1983. The University of Idaho has won our unofficial promptness award by returning its questionnaire on October first!

cedure after charges that her appointment had been racially biased (three different investigations later found no evidence of bias).

Sessions is currently president of the District of Columbia Library Association and is the immediate past president of ALA's Junior Members Round Table. She was recently elected for a four-year term as a member of ALA's Council. She sits as a member of the College & Research Libraries editorial board.

Sessions is the author of several articles in Cable Libraries and the LITA Newsletter and recent articles in American Libraries and Telecommunications Policy.

THOMAS W. SHAUGHNESSY, assistant director of the University of Houston Libraries, has been appointed director of libraries at the University of Missouri, Columbia, effective November 1. At Houston Shaughnessy was responsible for the public services program and all collection development.

His previous positions have included associate dean of the School of Library Science at the University of Southern California, 1974-1978; director of the Dana Library at Rutgers University, 1971-1974; and assistant dean of the Graduate School of Library Service at Rutgers, 1969-1971. A veteran of 20 years as a library professional, Shaughnessy has written articles for LIBRI, Library Trends, College & Research Libraries, Journal of Academic Librarianship, and California Librarian. In 1969 he co-authored a book published by the American Library Association entitled Library Response to Urban Change.

Shaughnessy holds a doctorate in library administration from Rutgers University (1970), an MLS from the University of Pittsburgh (1964), and a bachelor's degree in philosophy from St. Vincent College, Pennsylvania.

He has been active in ALA and currently serves on the editorial board of American Libraries.

RETIREMENTS

MARGARITA ANDERSON IMBERT, specialist in book selection in the Harvard College Library, retired on September 30 after 17 years in that department.

FRANK M. BLACKBURN, library director at West Texas State University, Canyon, retired on August 31 after thirty-one years of library service. He had been director for 24 years. Before coming to WTSU in 1958 he had served at Arizona State University (1951–1953), Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls (1953–1956), and the University of Missouri (1956–1958).

BARTOL BRINKLER, classification specialist in the Harvard College Library, retired at the end of June after 35 years of service.

CAROLYN BROWN retired as head of English Language Section 1, Descriptive Cataloging Division, Library of Congress, on July 16. She had served LC for 30 years.

ELSA S. FREEMAN retired as director of the library, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Washington, D.C., on September 17.

LOIS GREIST retired August 25 from her position as head of interlibrary loan, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee.

JEANNE WHITE, associate librarian of the Mann Library, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, retired on August 2 after 22 years at Cornell.

DEATHS

LINDA BUESCHER, assistant cataloging librarian at the University of the Pacific, Stockton, California, died suddenly on August 1.

FRANK S. HANLIN, bibliographer for the University of Iowa Libraries since 1966, died in Iowa City on August 9. Prior to that he had also served as head of acquisitions at Iowa and for two years at the University of North Carolina. Hanlin earned his MLS at the University of Michigan in 1955 and a master's in English from the University of Iowa in 1950. He compiled two editions of The Heirs of Hippocrates, a catalog of historic books in the University of Iowa Health Sciences Library, and for 18 years he served as assistant editor of Books at Iowa, the periodical published by the Friends of the University of Iowa Libraries.

HENRY MILLER MADDEN, for 30 years university librarian of California State University, Fresno, died at his home in Fresno on August 27. In 1946, having completed his service as secretary to the Tripartite Naval Commission in Berlin, Madden returned to the United States and finished his doctoral dissertation at Columbia. After receiving his library degree from the University of California, Berkeley, he was appointed librarian at Fresno State in 1949.

Madden was elected president of the California Library Association, and it was during his tenure as its editor that the California Librarian won the H. W. Wilson award for the best library journal in North America. His historical scholarship was voluminous. He was the author of four books and innumerable other contributions, and another book was in preparation at the time of his death. After he retired in 1979, the newly expanded and remodeled library building at California State University, Fresno, was named the Henry Madden Library.

GEOFFREY P. MAWN, Arizona Collections librarian at Arizona State University, died on August 28 after a long illness.

LAWRENCE QUINCY MUMFORD, librarian of Congress from 1954 to 1974, died on August 15 at his home in Washington at the age of 78. Mumford had been the first of eleven administrators of the library to have been a library school graduate.

During Mumford's administration the Library of Congress opened its first acquisition centers abroad in New Delhi and Cairo; acquired the Rosenwald Collection of rare books; renovated the Main Reading Room; began the Cataloging in Publications Program and the Presidential Papers microfilming program; and planned for the new James Madison Memorial Building.

Mumford received a bachelor's (1926) and a master's degree (1928) from Duke University. By 1928 he had become Duke's acting chief of reference and circulation. At Columbia University (1928–1929), where he obtained a bachelor's in library science, Mumford served as an assistant in the library. From 1929–1945 he served on the staff of the New York Public Library, his last position being coordinator of the General Service Divisions. In 1945 he was appointed assistant director of the Cleveland Public Library and in 1950 became its director.

He served as president of ALA in 1954–1955.
