PROFILES

Effective July 1, 1970, MELVILLE R. SPENCE, former Associate Director for Public Services at the University of Oklahoma, assumed the position of Director of Libraries at Bowling Green State University.

Melville R. Spence

His appointment ended a yearlong search by Bowling Green for a replacement for the former director, Dr. A. Robert Rogers, who resigned to accept an appointment as Professor of Library Science at Kent State University. During his twelve-year tenure at the University of Oklahoma library, Mr. Spence filled many library-related roles. He served as acquisitions librarian; assistant director, and later, associate director of public service; acting director from 1963 to 1964; and acting director of the School of Library Science from 1963 to 1965. His initial appointment at Oklahoma was preceded by a two-year graduate program at the University of Illinois from 1956 to 1958 to supplement his MSLS from Western Reserve University earned in 1951. Professionally, he has been involved extensively with national, regional, and state organizations. He is currently on the ALA Library Administration Division Budgeting, Accounting, and Costs Committee and is secretary of the Resources and Technical Services Division's Reproduction of Library Materials Committee.

The problems he faces at Bowling Green are closely related to those found in many of the nation's university libraries: faculty status, automation, and an acquisitions budget being steadily eroded by rising book costs and general inflation.

PETER SPYERS-DURAN has assumed the position of Director of Libraries and Professor of Library Science at Florida Atlantic University, replacing William Ax-ford, who became director of libraries at Arizona State University.

As director of libraries at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, Michigan, Mr. Spyers-Duran was responsible for a large number of innovative programs. He supervised the reclassification from Dewey to LC of over 350,000 volumes, restructured the library management, and established the Southwestern Educational Library Project. The latter project established the Western Michigan University library as a Regional Resource Center to serve the needs of the smaller institutions in the surrounding area.

Before accepting the position at Western Michigan, he was associate director of libraries at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, where he was responsible for a vast number of significant accomplishments. These included an extensive reclassification project, an automated serials control system, and a speed cataloging system.

His contributions to the profession in general have been as extensive and innovative as his accomplishments in the libraries where he has been employed. He is responsible for the organization of the International Seminars on Approval and Gathering Plans for Academic Libraries, the third of which was held in West Palm Beach during February of this year. ALA committee assignments have been extensive and varied and include the chairmanship of the LAD-PAS, 1970-72, chairmanship of the RTSD-RLMS Nominating Committee, 1970, and membership on the ACRL Publications Committee, 1969-71.

His extensive publication record reflects the wide range of his interests and contributions. They include a large number of reviews, several articles on approaches utilized at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and at Western Michigan University, and the editorship of the proceedings of the first two seminars on Approval and Gathering Plans for Academic Libraries.

At Florida Atlantic, he finds a new library

New Science Citation Index® 1965-69 Cumulation identifies over 90% of the world's published scientific and technical literature.

What was the title of that article? The author's correct name? The journal in which it appeared? The year and volume? Whether you're assisting a library patron in writing a paper, researching a scholarly study, or borrowing an article from another library through an interlibrary loan, it's essential that you know. And the Science Citation Index tells you, like no other combination of references available anywhere.*

In study after study, the Science Citation Index has demonstrated its ability to identify specific items of the world's scientific and technical literature with an ease, speed, accuracy, and thoroughness that make it indispensable to scientific, medical, and technical libraries both large and small.

And the new 5-Year Cumulative SCI®—covering all of the scientific disciplines for the years 1965 through 1969 in a single reference—virtually guarantees that you'll find and validate the information about almost any paper ever published. So there's no need to waste time looking through all the other indexes it might be in. What's more, the new 5-Year SCI takes less than half the space of the five annual issues it replaces.

You owe your library patrons, your staff, and yourself the convenience, the authority, and the unrivaled efficiency of the new 5-Year SCI. Find out more about how it can save you time and money. Write for our new brochure.

ON BOOKS THAT AREN'T

Newly revised for 1971, the 664-page Xerox Out-of-Print Book Catalog is substantially more comprehensive than the nearest contender—the 490-page 1970 Xerox Catalog.

This year's version lists 45,000 titles, making us again the largest out-of-print book publisher in the world.

Missing from this otherwise complete catalog are some 10,000 other titles that we'll publish this year. They're not listed for an excellent reason: we don't know what they are yet.

Every year, in response to thousands of requests, we track down out-of-print books, put them on microfilm, and publish them xerographically. In quantities as small or large as requested.

That way, librarians and scholars end up with books they might not otherwise have, and we end up with more titles in our catalog. (To keep you up-to-date on these new findings, we also publish The O-P Bookfinder as a monthly supplement.)

Write us for your copy, free of charge. If you're ever looking for an out-of-print title, chances are good you'll find it there.

But if you can't find it in our catalog, you can always consult a more comprehensive source.

NOBODY HAS MORE SELECTIONS FROM CHOICE THAN WE DO. INCLUDING CHOICE.

The Xerox College Library Book Program is designed to offer a representative sampling of books a library might want to have. And a massive sampling of books a library should have.

For example, we offer every book reviewed in Choice.^{*} (Choice, of course, is a publication of the Association of College and Research Libraries, and generally regarded as the most authoritative review source of college books.) So if you're adding to an existing library, you can get the best of current titles from us.

For those beginning a library, we offer the Choice Opening Day Collection. And in either case, all titles are available fully cataloged and processed according to Library of Congress classifications.

All these selections are listed in our new catalog, which you can have free. Write us for a copy.

We can't say that it's impossible to buy a book from us that you shouldn't have.

But the odds are definitely in your favor.

RETIREMENTS

HUMPHREY G. BOUSFIELD, Chairman of the Library Department at Brooklyn College, City University of New York, will be on terminal leave beginning September 1, 1971, before retirement, February 1, 1972, after twenty-six years as chief librarian of the college.

EDWARD GEIER FREEHAFFER, director of the New York Public Library for the past sixteen years, retired from his post on January 1. Except for service from 1944 to 1945 as assistant librarian at Brown University, Mr. Freehafer has been with the library since 1932 when he began as a reference assistant in the main reading room.

EVELYN FRITZ ended a librarian's career of almost forty years at the University of Georgia when she retired December 31, 1970. At the time of her retirement she was serving as associate director of libraries. Miss Fritz's first job with the university was that of assistant librarian at what was then Georgia State Teacher's College in Athens. She has served the main campus library as assistant cataloger, head of the order department, and acting director of libraries.

MRS. JEAN ORTH GODFREY retired January 1 from her post as chief of branch libraries of the New York Public Library, a top position among public library administrators in the United States. As chief librarian, Mrs. Godfrey has been responsible for the planning, development, and direction of the country's largest branch library system. The eighty branches operated by the New York Public Library in Manhattan, Staten Island, and the Bronx are staffed by 1,100—including 547 librarians—and annually lend more than 12 million volumes from a combined collection of about 5 million.

MARY E. OEMISCH, head of the interlibrary loan and photoduplication sections of the University of Rochester Rush Rhees library, has retired after forty-two years as a member of the UR libraries staff. ■■

Close the drawers on inefficient interlibrary lending.

Here's how one library organization did. First, the state library's entire card catalog was put on 3M microfilm cartridges. Participating area libraries were supplied with duplicates and equipped with 3M Brand "400C" Microfilm Reader-Printers.

Results: No more waiting for titles to be hunted down in the drawers of the card catalog. State library resources can be instantly surveyed at area library locations. Requests are verified in minutes and filled in hours.

A concise index in the area library provides quick access to the appropriate microfilm cartridge. By inserting the cartridge in the "400C" and turning a dial, the operator visually scans contents on the unit's screen. If the card for a desired book is in the catalog, a hard copy print of the card is obtained in just 6 seconds at the push of a button. Copies are used as loan request forms, eliminating the need to hand type these forms. The same microfilm retrieval system is used in the state library to fulfill requests.

Another important advantage of this system: An archival copy of the state library catalog was put on microfilm for safe keeping in case of fire or other disaster. Like to modernize your interlibrary loan system? Contact any 3M Business Products Center for more facts today. Or write 3M Company, Dept. FFD-41, St. Paul, MN 55101.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE

BOOKS BY TITLE: A CATALOG OF LIBRARY OF CONGRESS PRINTED CARDS

Although title arrangements of bibliographic materials often permit simpler, easier, and faster consultation than the more common author arrangements, there has until now been no truly comprehensive published bibliography arranged in title order.

The serious need for such a tool will be met by Gale's forthcoming English Language Books by Title, a catalog based on Library of Congress depository cards arranged by title and reproduced in their entirety (including LC and Dewey numbers and subject tracings). Cards included pertain to works completely or principally in the English language, regardless of place of publication.

THE BASE SET—Covering the years 1969 and 1970, the base set will consist of more than 160,000 entries in 20 volumes. The first two volumes will be ready for shipment in June, 1971; publication of the entire set will be completed before the end of the year. The base set is priced at $380.00.

QUARTERLY SUPPLEMENTS AND ANNUAL CUMULATIONS—Supplements to the base set will appear quarterly; the first supplement will cover January through March, 1971. Each two-volume, paperbound issue will contain about 20,000 entries, or about 80,000 entries a year. Annual cumulations, clothbound, will be issued about four months after the close of each year. The annual subscription to the quarterly supplements is $150.00 per year; the annual cumulation also costs $150.00 per year.

ADVANTAGES OF THE TITLE APPROACH—In addition to those already mentioned, some of the more prominent advantages of the title approach are that it will:

- . . . simplify searching and permit use of subprofessionals for this function
- . . . make possible the immediate preparation of catalog cards by the Polaroid process or similar methods
- . . . include under their titles government publications and publications of corporate authors which are not listed at all in some bibliographies
- . . . give an alternate point of entry and enable the determination of LC card order number when the author is uncertain or incorrectly cited
- . . . help eliminate confusion when main entry information in inter-library loan requests does not correspond with main entry established by the lending library
- . . . in general, give added flexibility to search and research activities which until now have been handicapped by the almost exclusive use of author names as the basis for organizing catalogs and indexes

TYPES OF PUBLICATIONS INCLUDED—Included among the 80,000 titles to be covered annually in the new Gale publication will be the following types of material, many not covered in any other source providing title access: books, monographs, and periodicals; publications of university presses, institutes, research units, etc.; local, state, federal, and foreign government publications; maps, reports, and pamphlets; reprints; publications in microform; and other published materials in English cataloged by LC, regardless of publisher or country of origin.

FURTHER INFORMATION—Please write for a detailed brochure describing the catalog, the professional staff involved in its preparation, and the trial plan under which the catalog may be used free for 90 days. For immediate answers call Robert Cartwright collect at (313) 961-2242.
