Deaths

Norman Brown, professor of library administration emeritus at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (UIUC), died in July. During his 39-year career at UIUC, he served as reference librarian, documents bibliographer, serials acquisition librarian, head of the Collection Development and Preservation Department, assistant director for bibliographic services and preservation, and, most recently, assistant director for special collections and preservation. Before joining UIUC, he worked as reference and acquisition librarian at the Union College Library. Brown compiled the annual Price Index for U.S. Periodicals and Serials from 1973 to 1984, and was well known for his chapter in Michael Gorman's Technical Services Today and Tomorrow. He retired from UIUC in 1992.

Leslie Mahin Oliver, former assistant to the librarian of the Houghton Library at Harvard University, died in June at the age of 95. Oliver attended Oregon State University, where he earned a bachelor's degree while supporting himself as a lumberjack, schoolteacher, and in other jobs. After receiving an M.A. in English, Oliver taught at several universities, and at the Colorado School of Mines and the U.S. Naval Academy. After receiving a doctorate from Harvard in 1948, he took W. A. Jacobson's seminar in bibliography, joined the Houghton staff that year as Jacobson's assistant, and worked there in many capacities until 1953.

Jerral R. Parrish, director of library media services at Bethany Lutheran College, died in February. At the time of his death, he was on sabbatical leave pursuing a doctorate in library science at the University of Wisconsin. He was a member of ALA and ACRL. ■
