Bibliometric papers wanted

The Fall 1989 special issue of Communication Research will focus on "Bibliometric Methods for the Study of Scholarly Communication." Papers on the topic, which encompasses the quantification of bibliographic data, might address the following questions: What contributions have bibliometric methods made to the study of scholarly communication in the past, and what role should or will they play in the future? What is the relationship among the different methods currently being applied to the study of scholarly communication? Can these methods be brought together in a single paradigm?

The deadline for submitting a paper is November 1, 1988. Authors whose manuscripts are accepted for publication will be notified by January 15, 1989. All papers and correspondence should be sent to Christine L. Borgman, Associate Professor, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90024; (213) 825-1379.

Communication Research is an international journal that publishes research on scholarly communication, organizational communication, and new information technologies.

Tough Questions?

Every day, you're challenged by tough questions.

Where can I get a chronology of the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal? What legislative steps is Japan taking to remove import quotas and other non tariff trade barriers in response to U.S. and EEC criticism?

If your users want the answers to these and other public policy questions, it's time to search PAIS.

PAIS is the foremost indexing service covering national and international political, economic, and social issues. It's the unique, one-stop resource that gives you immediate access to a huge, eclectic range of material, including books, periodical articles, directories, government documents, statistics, and much more. And it's the only index of its kind that covers literature published around the world in English, French, German, Italian, Portuguese, and Spanish.

Where are your searches consistently productive, adding a valuable dimension to your research efforts? Where do you find answers to the toughest questions? Easy . . . PAIS!

PAIS is available in print, online, and now via CD-ROM. For information, call 800-841-1416. In New York or outside the continental U.S., call 212-736-6629.
