

PROFILES

JOAN L. CHAMBERS has been named university librarian at the University of California, Riverside. From 1979 to 1981 she served as assistant university librarian for public services at the University of California, San Diego, and prior to that she held various professional positions, including that of government publications librarian, at the University of Nevada, Reno. In 1978-79 she was selected by the Council on Library Resources to be an academic library management intern at Duke University.

Joan L. Chambers

Chambers obtained a bachelor's degree in English at the University of Northern Colorado, Greeley, and an MLS at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1970. She was the first library faculty member at Reno to be elected to the faculty senate (1976) and was subsequently elected chairman.

She has presented papers and conducted workshops at many conferences, most notably a paper on "Federal Documents in Microform" at the Third Annual Microforms Conference, 1977, and a legal reference workshop at the University of Nevada in 1975.

Chambers currently serves on ACRL's Planning Committee and in 1973-78 she was secretary of the Law and Political Science Section. Her other ALA activities have included a term as chapter councilor, 1977-78, various offices on the Government Documents Round Table, 1972-79, and member of the ad hoc Committee on the Depository Library System, 1974-77.

Chambers is also active in the California Library Authority for Systems and Services (CLASS), the Special Interest Group on Numeric Data Bases of the American Society for Information Science, the California Library Association, and the Southern California Technical Processes Group. She is currently chair of the Editorial Advisory Board of the Index to U.S. Government Periodicals.

WENDELL LEONARD WRAY, professor of library science at the University of Pittsburgh, has been appointed chief of the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, New York City, effective August 1.

As chief of the Schomburg Center, Wray will be responsible for its staffing, budgets, acquisitions and services as well as community relations. He succeeds John Miller who has served as acting chief of the center for the past year, and Jean Blackwell Hutson, curator of the collection and later chief of the center from 1948 to 1980.

Wray served as acting curator of the Schomburg Collection from 1964 to 1965, after which he was named director of the New York Public Library's North Manhattan Project, a pilot program which demonstrated the potential effectiveness of library services for the disadvantaged.

For the past eight years Wray has been a professor at the University of Pittsburgh's School of Library and Information Science. He has written for a number of publications, including the Film Library Quarterly, the Catholic Library Journal, and the New York Amsterdam News. He has lectured extensively on oral history and is a contract interviewer for the Oral History Research Office of Columbia University.

BESSIE K. HAHN was appointed director of library services at Brandeis University, Waltham, Massachusetts, effective February 1. Since 1978 she had been assistant director for reader services at Johns Hopkins University Library, and prior to that held a succession of library appointments at Syracuse University.

Her professional interests focus on the areas of public services and collection development. She has devoted special attention to building a closer relationship between the library and its users through library orientation and instruction programs. For her outstanding contribution in this area at Johns Hopkins, she was awarded the Gold Cup by the Class of 1980. She has presented workshops on library management and communications skills under the sponsorship of the Syracuse University School of Management and the ARL Office of Management Studies.

Born in Shanghai, Hahn moved to Hong Kong at the age of eight. She has a bachelor's degree from Mount Marty College, Yankton, South Dakota, and an MLS from Syracuse University. At Brandeis she will assume responsibility for a library building project which will include a
