ENCYCLOPEDIA OF APPLIED PHYSICS

in 20 volumes

Editor:

George Trigg, former Editor of
Physical Review Letters, NY

EAP's Seal of Approval:

Sponsored by the American Institute of Physics, the German Physical Society, the Japanese Society of Applied Physics and the Physical Society of Japan

Highlights of EAP:

- Covers modern technologies where most of the work is done by engineers and where physics research is a necessary part of further developments.
- The first work of its kind to treat both technical and industrial applications, covering every aspect of applied physics.
- Designed to be comprehensive and topically useful at the same time for years to come.
- Authors and editors are leading scientists and engineers in industry and academia.
- Volumes are organized alphabetically by subject.
- Each article contains: • a detailed table of contents • a glossary of unfamiliar terms • a detailed reference list.

Retirements

JEAN G. COOK, head of the Acquisitions Department at Iowa State University Library, retired in November 1991 after more than 22 years of service.

A graduate of the University of Iowa in 1949, Cook earned an MLS in 1969 from the University of Oklahoma. She began her career working as a serials cataloger at Iowa State University Library in 1969 and later was promoted to head of the Serials Cataloging Section. In 1976 Cook moved to Duke University as head of the Serials Department. Four years later she returned to Iowa State as head of the Serials Department and served in that capacity until 1990, when she became head of the Acquisitions Department. Cook has served as ALA's representative to the CONSER Advisory Group, was elected to the RTSD Board of Directors and to the chairmanship of the Serials Section, winning in 1990 the section's Bowker/Ulrich's Serials Librarianship Award. She served on the OCLC Serials Control Advisory Committee, co-edited with Marcia Tuttle Advances in Serials Management (JAI Press), and served on the editorial boards of The Serials Review and Cataloging and Classification Quarterly.

MARJORIE KARLSON retired at the end of 1991 from her position as head of the Reference Department at the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Library. Upon her retirement, Karlson was awarded the University Chancellor's Medal in recognition of her national reputation as a reference librarian and her more than 44 years in the field, including 20 at UMass/Amherst.

BERNICE WEISS, catalog librarian in the Collections Development and Management Department of the Countway Library of Medicine at Harvard University, retired recently from that position.

Deaths

JAMES W. BARRY, deputy associate director for library operations at the National Library of Medicine from 1977 until his retirement in 1980, died in December 1991. Barry graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in 1947, then received his bachelor's in library science from the Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1948, and an MEd from the University of Pittsburgh in 1952. He began his career at the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh and subsequently worked at the Purdue University libraries, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Library, and the University of Pittsburgh Library, before joining the staff of the National Library of Medicine (NLM) in 1955. At NLM Barry became head of acquisitions before leaving in 1963 to become the first librarian of the newly established Library of Science and Medicine at Rutgers University. During 1968-69 he was visiting librarian to the faculty of science at Mahidol University in Bangkok, then spent 1971-76 as librarian of the Arizona Medical Center Library. In 1976 he returned to Washington, D.C., where, after a brief stint as director of the Learning Resource Center/Library of the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, he rejoined the NLM in the position he held until his retirement. Barry was active in the District of Columbia Library Association, the Medical Library Association, and ALA.

JOHN P. COMAROMI, editor of the Dewey Decimal Classification (DDC) since 1980, died in November 1991 at the age of 54. Before his appointment at DDC, Comaromi taught at the library schools of the University of California at Los Angeles, Western Michigan University, and the University of Oregon. He received his doctorate in library science from the University of Michigan in 1969 and was honored as a distinguished alumnus there in 1990. He was the author of numerous journal articles and several books on the DDC including The Eighteen Editions of the Dewey Decimal Classification (1976); Exercises in the 20th Edition of the Dewey Decimal Classification (with M. P. Satija, 1990); and Dewey Decimal Classification, 20th Edition: A Study Manual (with Jeanne Osborn, 1991).
