of the Still Memorial Library, Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine, Missouri, after 17 years of service.

MARJORIE WEBBER, catalog librarian at Phillips University, Enid, Oklahoma, has retired after 17 years of service. Webber began her career in the Reference Department of Metropolitan Library in Oklahoma City in 1941. She later served as assistant librarian at Washington University Medical School, St. Louis, and health services librarian at Ohio State University, Columbus. Webber received her bachelor's in library science at the University of Oklahoma in 1941 and her MLS there in 1981.

Deaths

OIVIND HOVDE, head librarian at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, from 1949–1977, died June 8. Hovde served as head librarian longer than anyone in the college's 125-year history and helped design the Preus Library at the college, which opened in 1969. Hovde served as president of the Iowa Library Association and helped establish the Northeast Iowa Academic Librarians group.

MARION KLIEWER, associate catalog librarian at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, died June 2. He had been at the university since 1971.

RICHARD F. LARSON, former head of the Bibliographical Division of the Acquisition Department (1956–1972) and assistant to the library planning and budget officer (1972–1980) at the University of California, Berkeley, died in San Diego this summer after a long illness. Following service in World War II, Larson earned bachelor's and master's degrees in Romance languages at Harvard University and an MLS at Berkeley in 1952. He worked in the Reference Department at Stanford University before returning to the University of California, where he served for 24 years.

BRADLEY FURRS MILLARD, reference librarian since 1963 at the University of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Washington, died suddenly on June 24. Formerly with the U.S. Army Security Agency and Arvin Industries, he received a bachelor's degree from Illinois College, Jacksonville, in 1955 and an MLS from Indiana University, Bloomington, in 1963.

H. GORDON STEVENSON, associate professor at the School of Library and Information Science at the State University of New York at Albany, died June 14 after a brief illness. Prior to his library career, Stevenson earned bachelor's and master's degrees in music at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, and taught on the music faculty there. After receiving his library degree from Indiana University in 1956, he worked as a cataloger with the New York Public Library and later became head of the Art and Music Department and associate head librarian at the Kansas City, Missouri, Public Library. He earned his Ph.D. at Indiana in 1970. In addition to teaching, Stevenson edited books on the subjects of classification history and theory, music librarianship and popular culture.

MARY AUSTIN WALKER, retired librarian in the former Catalog Department at Indiana University, Bloomington, died on May 17. She received her undergraduate degree from Hollins College in Roanoke, Virginia, and her MLS from Columbia University, New York.

JOYCE C. WERNER, former head of reference services at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, died June 10 following an extended illness. Werner's career as a reference librarian spanned 32 years and included tenures with Oklahoma State University, Stillwater (1953–1955); the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana (1955–1962); Emory University, Atlanta (1962–1970); the University of Illinois at Chicago (1970–1974); and the University of South Carolina, Columbia, where she served as head of the Reference Department from 1974 to 1980, before assuming her position at LSU. Werner retired in 1985. ■■
