Retirements

Barry B. Baker has retired from the University of Central Florida Libraries (UCF) after 22 years as director. Baker joined UCF in 1997 from University of Georgia Libraries, where he had served as assistant director for technical services for 16 years. Baker was instrumental in developing the libraries' Regional Campus network of librarians, the opening of the Rosen College and Downtown libraries, and oversaw a marked increase in both print and digital information resources. He was particularly interested in building special collections and archives, and several important collections were obtained during his tenure, including the Georgine and Thomas Mickler Floridiana Collection, the Sol and Sadie Malkoff Book Arts Collection, the Carol Mundy African-American Legacy Collection, the Harrison Price Company Archives of travel and tourism, and numerous additions to the Libraries' Caribbean and Latin American art collections. Baker's most notable accomplishment is the successful redevelopment of the John C. Hitt Library on UCF's main campus. Over his 53-year library career, Baker was active professionally with ACRL, the Association of Library Collections and Technical Services, and the Association of Southeastern Research Libraries. He served on the Executive Council and in other leadership positions with the Association of Caribbean University, Research and Institutional Libraries, and was selected Caribbean Information Professional of the year in 2007. Baker edited the "Technical Services Report" in Technical Services Quarterly and is a noted expert in cataloging and acquisitions.

Wendy Pradt Lougee has retired after more than 17 years as university librarian and dean of libraries at the University of Minnesota. Previously, she spent 20 years at the University of Michigan with earlier appointments at Brown University and Wheaton College in Massachusetts. Throughout her career, Lougee has been at the forefront nationally—developing a number of programs, initiatives, and policies that have revolutionized academic librarianship, particularly in the area of innovation and technology. ♪
