Retirements

Annelle R. Huggins, associate dean of libraries at the University of Memphis (UM), has retired. Huggins had been at UM since 1981, when she joined the library faculty as coordinator of technical services. She later served as associate director (1986–99), interim dean (1999–2000), and, most recently, as associate dean since 2000. She held positions at Texas A&M University and the University of Oklahoma libraries prior to joining the UM faculty. Huggins has previously served as ALA Chapter Councilor for Tennessee (2000–06, 2008) and will continue to serve as executive director of the Tennessee Library Association, a position she has held since 2001.

Jack Sulzer, senior associate dean for undergraduate and learning services, has retired from Penn State's University Libraries after more than four decades of service. Sulzer's career with the libraries began in 1972, when he became an assistant to the archivist in the Reference Archives. In 1979, he was appointed state and local documents librarian and then patents and law librarian. Sulzer was appointed head of the general reference section in 1990. In 1998, he became the associate dean of Campus College Libraries and was later promoted to senior associate dean of undergraduate learning services. Sulzer served as president of the Pennsylvania Library Association and has held numerous leadership positions on ALA committees and divisions, including chair and assistant chair of the U.S. Public Printer's Depository Library Council, the National Commission on Library and Information Science Committee on Government Information Policy, and as chair to the Government Documents Roundtable. In addition, he was on the board of directors of Collegian Inc., publisher of the student-run newspaper, The Daily Collegian. Within the libraries, Sulzer led a wide range of committees and groups, where his strength in consensus building saw the libraries successfully transition through significant technological change and administrative restructuring. Although retired, Sulzer will maintain a strong connection to the University Libraries in the capacity of librarian emeritus. zz
