Some Recent Publications on Higher Education

IN THE paragraphs that follow Clara Esther Derring and Carrie E. Meares of Teachers College Library, Columbia University, call attention to some of the most important literature on higher education published in 1939 and 1940.

Bixler, Roy W. Institution-Faculty Relations in the College of Integrity. Bureau of Publications, Teachers College, Columbia University, 1939. 178p. $2.25.

The purpose of the study is "to discover, in selected areas, what kinds of institutional-faculty relations tend to promote better institutional integrity and to build these into a basic program which would be useful for a college desiring to improve its own faculty relations." The following areas were selected for study: (1) recruiting of faculty personnel; (2) intellectual freedom in the college; (3) salary, tenure, and auxiliary services, including retirement plans, insurance, housing, and health services; (4) the rôle of the faculty in the government of the college; (5) stimulating faculty growth.

Bowman, Isaiah. The Graduate School in American Democracy. U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, 1939. 70p. 15c. (U. S. Office of Education. Bulletin 1938, No.10)

A statement of "the function of the graduate school with reference to its relation to the nation's resources, both human and material."

Branscomb, Harvey. Teaching with Books; a Study of College Libraries. Association of American Colleges, American Library Association, 1940. 239p. $2.50.

A study of the college library from the standpoint of its educational effectiveness, made for the Association of American Colleges. (See review, page 278.)

Buswell, Guy T. Remedial Reading at the College and Adult Levels; an Experimental Study. University of Chicago Press, 1939. 72p. $1. (Supplementary Educational Monographs, No.50)

"The study reported in this monograph is concerned entirely with the process of reading, which obviously is only a part of the total problem of reading. The exclusion from consideration of such matters as materials of reading, purposes of reading, and sociological data relating to the types of readers and kinds of material read carries no implication that these factors are of less importance. Limiting the problem is simply a recognition of the fact that, to be effective, any scientific study must be focalized."

"The present study is concerned directly with the possibility of improving a small group of factors basic to the reading process."

Butler, Nicholas Murray. Across the Busy Years; Recollections and Reflections. Vol.1. Scribner, 1939. 451p. $3.75.

In his memoirs Dr. Butler, president of Columbia University, writing of his activities and accomplishments as an educator and a liberal Republican, has presented a truly important contribution to the story of our times. He, himself, says: "In looking back across the busy years it is plain that both their interest and whatever importance those years may be thought to possess are due to the fact that they have been so largely occupied with ideas and policies of public moment. Every activity has been secondary and even incidental to the self-chosen task of planning and building, upon the foundations of historic Columbia College, a university in the fullest sense of that word, which should respond not only to the highest ideals of the intellectual and spiritual life but to the insistent and many-sided needs of modern democratic society. That task, chosen with deliberation and adhered to persistently and stubbornly despite every possible temptation and allurements, both financial and political, has dominated these busy years from first to last."

A second volume dealing with his interests in international affairs has been promised.

Readings in Business Administration

MARIAN C. MANLEY, business branch librarian, Newark Public Library, supplies the following annotated list of recent articles in the field of business administration which have marked application to libraries.

Bibliography

Amos Tuck School of Administration and Finance. Reading List on Business Administration. Dartmouth College, 1939. 54p. 30c.

A faculty-selected, annotated list of books useful to executives, prepared at the request of the alumni. A well-balanced selection.

Magazine Articles

Dean, Joel. "Demand for Professional Management Counsel." Journal of Business of the University of Chicago 11:217-31, July 1938.

An analysis of the different types of management consultants, the services they offer, the conditions that have made consultation advisable, and the groups in which clients are found.

Maledon, W. J. "Research in Retail Distribution: Its Methods and Problems." Journal of Marketing 4:238-48, Jan. 1940.

Since many department problems in library and retail store administration are similar, such a thoughtful discussion of the benefits of an administrative research assistant is of practical value.

Smith, George H. "Building the Junior Marketing Executive." Journal of Marketing 4:168-77, Oct. 1939.

As problems of developing administrative ability are pressing, the specific, sympathetic, and progressive program here outlined deserves attention.

Books

Heyel, Carl. Human Relations Manual for Executives. McGraw-Hill, 1939. 253p. $2.

A stimulating, practical collection of notes on getting along with people, developing the working force, paying people, and other pressing executive problems. Free from cant and constructive in approach.

Current Reference Aids

THIS checklist of 1939 reference books published in English has been compiled by a committee of which Frances Neel Cheney, Mabel L. Conat, Charles F. McCombs, James T. Rubey, Harold Russell, and Anne M. Smith are members and the undersigned is chairman.

Undoubtedly, this first list has omissions. You are invited to call them to the committee's attention for inclusion in subsequent issues. We will also welcome suggestions on the following points:

1. Continuations: Standard yearbooks have not been listed unless the 1939 issue contained fundamental changes.
2. Government publications: The committee proposes to canvass carefully for reference tools in 1940. Only a few 1939 items are here included.
3. Society publications: Much needs to be done with university and learned society publications. These will be included during 1940.
4. Foreign language reference books: These will be listed in the next issue.
5. Ephemera: The committee invites the aid of reference workers.
6. Local reference aids: Reference librarians are invited to submit for listing any local bibliographies or reference tools developed.
