

Milda Cibulskytė, graduate of Vytautas Magnus University, medical psychologist in secondary health care. The area of interest is the impact of psychological factor changes on human health.

Address: Jonava 66, LT-44191 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 327824

E-mail: milda.cibulskyte@gmail.com

Auksė Endriulaitienė, PhD in social sciences, Professor in Psychology Department, Vytautas Magnus University. Fields of interest: work-related attitudes, leadership, burnout.

Address: Jonavos 66, LT-44191 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 327949

E-mail: aukse.endriulaitiene@vdu.lt

Justė Lukoševičiūtė graduated in Bachelor of Health Psychology and currently is a second-year student in Master of Health Psychology, Lithuanian University of Health Sciences. Her research interests and diploma thesis are mainly targeted towards personality psychology with specific scope to clinical populations.

Address: Department of Health Psychology, Faculty of Public Health, Lithuanian University of Health Sciences, Tilžės 18, LT-47181 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 242911

E-mail: juste.lukoseviciute3@gmail.com

Modesta Morkevičiūtė received her Master degree in Organizational psychology in Vytautas Magnus University. Fields of interest: leadership, burnout, workaholism.

Address: Jonavos 66, LT-44191 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 684 68058

E-mail: modestamorkeviciute@gmail.com

Justina Slavinskienė, PhD student, Department of Psychology at Vytautas Magnus University, Kaunas, Lithuania. Scientific interests: psychological aspects of risky driving; the analysis of psychological aspects of health-related behaviour (addiction); psychological mechanisms of gender differences in behavioural studies and personal health-related cognitive behavioural aspects.

Address: Jonava 66, LT-44191 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 327824

E-mail: justina.slavinskiene@vdu.lt

Jolanta Sondaitė, PhD is a professor of Psychology in Institute of Psychology at Mykolas Romeris University. Her research interests include conflicts, relationships, mediation, subjective experiences.

Address: Mykolas Romeris University, Institute of Psychology, Ateities 20, LT-08303 Vilnius, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 5 2714620

E-mail: jsondait@mruni.eu

Kastytis Šmigelskas defended his PhD at University of Eastern Finland. Currently he has a position of associated professor at Department of Health Psychology, Lithuanian University of Health Sciences. His research interests include but are not limited to personality psychology, especially from perspective of health. Areas of interest and expertise also include research methodology and biostatistics.

Address: Department of Health Psychology, Faculty of Public Health, Lithuanian University of Health Sciences, Tilžės 18, LT-47181 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 242911

E-mail: kastytis.smigelskas@lsmuni.lt

Gailė Vinciūnaitė received her M.A. in Psychology (Business Psychology Study Programme) at Mykolas Romeris University (Vilnius, Lithuania). Her interests include personnel psychology, psychological harassment. She works as a HR administration manager.

Address: Mykolas Romeris University, Institute of Psychology, Ateities 20, LT-08303 Vilnius, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 5 2714620

E-mail: gaile.vinciunaite@gmail.com

Loreta Zajančauskaitė-Staskevičienė, PhD, lecturer at Vytautas Magnus University, medical psychologist in primary health care. The area of interest is the factors influencing adaptation difficulties.

Address: Jonava 66, LT-44191 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 327824

E-mail: loreta.zajanckauskaite-staskeviciene@vdu.lt

Kristina Žardeckaitė-Matulaitienė, Assoc. Prof., PhD, Department of Psychology at Vytautas Magnus University, Kaunas, Lithuania. Scientific interests: evaluation of the effectiveness of psychological interventions; risk-taking behaviour, research in communication psychology and psychology of religion; gender issues in psychology.

Address: Jonava 66, LT-44191 Kaunas, Lithuania.

Phone: +370 37 327824

E-mail: kristina.zardeckaite-matulaitiene@vdu.lt